On three fronts, state and city officials today tested the legality of the newly-formed Boston Discount Group, in Devonshire street, which promises to pay investors $640 for $5.95.

As the series of conferences between state and city officials were in progress the offices of the company were closed. A detail of police under orders from Police Commissioner Timilty stood guard at the doors.

After a conference with Attorney Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for John S. Rogers, president of the organization, Police Commissioner Timilty stated the offices would remain closed until District Attorney Foley had completed his examination of the company's books.

FOLEY PROBES LEGALITY

Assistant Attorney Generals James J. Ronan and Garrett H. Byrne will confer on the question of legality of the operations of the firm.

District Attorney Foley, whose order closed the offices of the group, announced police would remain on guard until he had satisfied himself the company was operating within the law.

Attorney Callahan protested to Commissioner Timility that his client was doing business and that a license to operate that business was on file at city hall.

DENIES LAW'S RIGHT

He stated that the commissioner, or the district attorney, had no right to interfere with the orderly process of the firm's business pointing out that under due process they should bring the matter before the courts.

Kenneth B. Backman, manager of the Boston Better Business Bureau, visited the assistant attorney general and submitted to him a ruling of the United States Supreme Court on an allegedly similar scheme, which was held as a lottery and thereby illegal.

Pen Experts Will Study Vote Lists

In his drive to get at the bottom of Boston's election fraud, Police Commissioner Timilty today announced that two handwriting experts would examine nomination papers of all candidates "for public office."

The commissioner declared that the signatures on the nomination papers would be compared with the writing of two persons allegedly responsible for fraudulent entries on police listings in Charlestown.

He made the announcement following a conference at City Hall with Chairman David B. Shaw of the election commission.

Commissioner Timilty explained that his theory is that if the two men who allegedly made out the fraudulent listings were interested in certain candidates, it was reasonable to believe they would also be interested enough to sign nomination papers.

TURNER ON JOB

The handwriting experts, who began scrutinizing the nomination papers, are George Smith of the police department and Wilbur F. Turner, well known expert.

AFL Votes 'Curb' On Labor Board

DENVER, Oct. 13 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor Convention decided unanimously today to ask Congress to curb the powers of the National Labor Relations Board.

This action followed demand for removal of three NLRB directors, including Dr. Howard Meyers, Boston regional director.

The convention also voted unanimously today to join British labor in a boycott on Japanese goods.

Grand Jury Will Probe Dolan Case

District Attorney William J. Foley today announced that evidence in the city of Boston's suit against former City Treasurer Edmund H. Dolan will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow.

The district attorney made the announcement following a conference between Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle, Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley and Miss Gertrude Maloney, indictment clerk.

Assistant District Attorney Doyle recent was appointed by District Attorney to work with members of the so-called federal "wrecking crew" who investigated the income and affairs of Dolan.

Last month the Supreme Court upheld the decision of Judge Edward F. Hanify of Superior Court ordering Dolan to pay the city $178,072.88—total principal and interest—which he allegedly fraudulently made while he was city treasurer.

The decision by Judge Hanify found that Dolan had profited to the extent of $131,161.90 in the sale and purchase of stocks and bonds through a brokerage house, the Legal Securities Corporation, which the city alleged was a "dummy" concern Dolan owned and controlled.

Burns Wires as Guns Bark

BERNARD BRENNAN JAMES DALHOVER

All was quiet on peaceful Central street in Bangor. But unknown to passersby, G-Men and police had been sprinkled about at vantage points. Suddenly a shot rang out. From out of ambush leaped alert men of the law aimed to exterminate the ruthless Brady gang. And just as alert, and virtually into the line of crossfire, stepped a newsman. He was Bernard Brennan, Boston Evening American correspondent. His mind grasped the situation and he grabbed a phone. While guns were still barking, Brennan was giving an eyewitness account to the Boston Evening American—an actual recitation of the dramatic events as they took place. Within a matter of minutes, the story was written and on the street. Brennan is shown above, at left, as James Dalhover, only gang survivor of the battle, is being led to a cell.

Sabotage Clues On U. S. Cruiser

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—A navy inquiry board reported today it had found evidence of possible sabotage to the heavy cruiser Vincennes, now undergoing tests at the Boston navy yard.

The board said that in one of the four reduction gear boxes of the 10,000-ton craft a large piece of metal was found. In another, a file, not of navy issue, was discovered later. The extent of damage was not estimated.

Adams Heads Bankers; War Debt Default Hit

Orval W. Adams, 53-year-old first vice-president of the American Bankers' Association, was today elected president of the association at the 63d annual convention at Hotel Statler, succeeding Tom K. Smith of St. Louis.

Philip A. Benson of Brooklyn, N. Y., was elected first vice-president and Robert W. Hanes of Winston-Salem, N. C., second vice-president.

Before the second general session of the association today, Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, told some 4000 bankers that defaulted war debts balked attempts of the American government to restore normal financial relations with creditor nations.

In a slashing attack on the policies of the New Deal, Henning W. Prentis, Jr. head of the Armstrong Cork Co. of Lancaster, Pa., told the bankers today that the present administration acts like "medicine men who can cure our economic ills by charm."

Gang Survivor Gives Bridgeport Clue

BULLETIN

James Dalhover, lone survivor of the notorious Brady gang, today gave G-men the names and addresses of Bridgeport (Ct.) sweethearts of Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., his slain comrades. Bridgeport police were immediately notified.

By JOHN W. ENGLISH and ARTHUR J. QUINN

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondents

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 13—Three policemen and a store clerk were wantonly murdered by the pint-sized Brady gang as they cut a bloody swath across Indiana and Ohio, James Dalhover, lone survivor of the midwestern mob, confessed to police and G-men today.

As the battered and weary desperado detailed the past depredations of the second Dillinger gang, authorities announced he had agreed to waive extradition and would probably be taken out of Maine within 24 hours.

Dalhover's seizure in a downtown sporting goods store was the spark which touched off the spectacular gun battle, in which Al Brady, sneering public enemy No. 1, and Clarence Lee Shaffer, boastful baby member of the gang, were slain by G-men and police.

When the smoke of battle had cleared, Brady and Shaffer, their bodies bored by bullets, lay sprawled on the trolley tracks running along Central street.

G-man Walter Walsh, wounded in battle, smashed Dalhover in the face with his gun butt, knocking off his glasses, before the guns began to roar in the street.

Federal officials said today that it has been tentatively decided to remove the first lieutenant of the slain gang chief to Indiana, where he is wanted for the murder of a state trooper.

Dalhover was to be taken to Boston late today, and from there to Washington, on a long circuitous journey back to his home state.

Meanwhile, it was learned, the Department of Justice had already started to track down persons previously associated with the "vest pocket" killers and others who may have harbored them.

In Washington, J. Edgar Hoover was known to have received a confidential report from Myron Gurney, who commanded the G-men in the murderous ambush of the Indiana bank robbers.

While authorities boasted the mob had been obliterated, they intimated at the same time that additional arrests might follow.

CALLED MAINE FOLK 'HICKS'

Police activity spread to Boston and Bridgeport, Conn., as interrogators drew from Dalhover a detailed account of the gang's past exploits and future aims.

The main hideout of the Indiana bad men was in one or the other of these cities, G-Men concluded.

One of the officers who questioned the battered survivor said the three killers had been in Maine for some time.

"They thought the people of Maine were a bunch of hicks," he said.

Investigators, probing into the gang's activities, traced them to a temporary hideaway in a de luxe automobile camp on Route U. S. 2—the main highway leading to Boston.

The midget murderers had just completed plans for the master stroke which would have "made Dillinger look like a punk" when their dream of empire was shattered by gunfire and death.

Their next onslaught against the law was to have been the looting of the Merrill Trust Company, of Bangor.

When Brady's bullet-torn body was lifted from the car tracks in Central street, a floor map of the banking institution was found in one of his coat pockets.

Carefully detailed were all doors, stairs, distances and partitions, police said.

Authorities also believe the gunmen planned to rob the local Sears Roebuck store, one of the largest in the state.

GIRL CASHIER SUSPICIOUS

Mrs. Leona Goodwin, pretty young basement cashier, said that two men whom she now knows were Brady and Dalhover, were standing on a staircase overlooking her desk about 6 p. m. last Saturday, when the store was crowded.

Brady was smoking a cigar, she said, and keeping his eyes fixed on her cash register. She asked him:

"What do you want, mister?"

At the question, he swung the cigar to the side of his mouth, muttered something unintelligible and started upstairs with his companion. Mrs. Goodwin called a clerk, who notified Store Manager Alton C. Hawkes of the cashier's suspicions.

Brady and Dalhover remained in the store for some time, she said, but their movements were closely watched.

While the bodies of his two associates lay on marble slabs in a local undertaking establishment, Dalhover talked willingly to authorities.

His face gashed by the gun butt blow fro Walsh, and smoking innumerable cigarettes, the sallow-cheeked prisoner traced the bloody trail followed by the gang across the upper half of the United States.

Dalhover, the farmhand who turned gunman, told police and G-men of the four merciless murders and scores of bank robberies and holdups.

'SETTLED' POLICE SCORES

In Indiana, the mob "settled" old scores with the police. Police Sergeant Richard Rivers, of Indianapolis, was slain in April, 1936.

Last May, State Trooper Paul Minneman was wantonly murdered in a bank robbery at Goodland. Another policeman was wounded.

Racing into Ohio, the vengeful gunmen mowed down State Highway Patrolman George Conn at the side of a road near Freeport.

Their flashing automatics also claimed the life of Edward Lindsay, Piquo, Ohio, store clerk.

The murders were interspersed with daring house, bank and jewel robberies in which large sums were seized to finance the gang's rapidly expanding operations.

Before moving into the pastoral quiet of northern New England, the trio spent a dangerous interlude in Baltimore.

While there, Shaffer and Dalhover found time to marry two sisters last May. But the brides deserted them when police smashed into their hideout.

At that time the three outlaws escaped after a furious gun battle.

ADDED TO ARSENAL

Aside from the gun and ammunition purchases made at Everett Hurd's sporting goods store, where the bandit's were trapped, Brady and his henchmen added to their arsenal on other local shopping expeditions, it was revealed today.

On Sept. 22, one day after the first visit to Hurd's store, Brady and Dalhover appeared in the gun department of the nearby Rice and Miller Company store, in Broad street.

From Charles Silsby, clerk, Dalhover purchased three automatics and a box of ammunition. He used the name of C. Harris, Market street, Warren, Ohio, Silsby said.

BRADY'S "HEAD BOWED"

The two men told the clerk they bought and sold guns of every description. Silsby said that Brady kept his head bowed most of the time he was in the store. The clerk told Charles Clark, another employe, at the time:

"I think those fellows might be bad eggs."

Silsby said he talked to James Sullivan, head bookkeeper, before making the sale, but was told that there were no restrictions against the sale of firearms in Maine.

Silsby said that it was evident from the men's conversations that they had expert knowledge of guns.

TRIED TO BUY MORE

Webster Harriman, in charge of the gun department, said Dalhover tried to buy more guns last Friday morning. He recalled:

"But I didn't sell him any. He wanted me to order more automatics, but I would not do so because I was suspicious.

"Brady came in Saturday night at 8:15 and wanted to look at guns, but I did't sell him any or order any for him."

DRANK AT MECCA BAR

Further information regarding the last movements of the bandit gang came from James E. McGinty, half owner of the Mecca Bar, which was struck by at least one bullet in the street battle.

He said all three of the gangsters spent an hour in his place on the night of Tuesday, October 5. They stayed from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock, he said, drinking beer and playing the machines.

Mrs. Helen S. McCann, sister of McGinty and wife of his partner, waited on the men and was asked a number of questions regarding surrounding towns and cities and automobile routes.

SPENT FREELY

They were particularly interested in Industry and Corinth, on the main highway to Canada via Greenville and Jackman, he said.

They also questioned Mrs. McCann closely about Bucksport, site of a large paper mill, and Winterport. They spent freely, McGinty said.

The bar owner also disclosed that Bangor police tipped him off Friday that G-men and their allies might be shooting it out with the bank robbers by the first of the week.

Police also showed him pictures of the three public enemies. He said his sister pointed out Brady, from the pictures, as the one who did most of the talking.

"HEADQUARTERS" IN BOSTON

Discovery that the three diminutive dealers in death had worked out of a camp on the main road to Boston led to the conclusion that the main headquarters were in Boston.

Police Chief Thomas I. Crowley said a study of the gang's midwestern methods showed that it was the policy of the trio to set up a main headquarters and to establish temporary outposts at strategic points.

In this connection, he said, Boston would be a logical base for operations in New England. He recalled that from Baltimore the gang moved out to complete criminal projects in Ohio and Indiana.

Buffeted by questions, Dalhover is reported to have lent credence to Crowley's conclusions in this connection.

While G-Men maintained their traditional silence, it was learned they were in communication with their Boston office and with federal authorities in Hartford, Conn.

The Department of Justice men were reported planning extensive investigation in both Boston and Bridgeport.

Captain Frank Foley, of the Bangor police, was authority for a report Dalhover had given G-men a complete report of the gang's movements.

He said G-men, working in relays, took 50 pages of typewritten notes from the room where the prisoner was prodded by his inquisitors.

Foley said he overheard the prisoner say he met Brady when he and Shaffer visited a farm next to the one where he (Dalhover) worked. Foley quoted Dalhover as saying:

LASHES AT BRADY

"Brady was the boss, but he didn't have half the guts Shaffer had. Brady was always too anxious to pull his rod. We didn't like that."

Ruefully surveying his own desperate plight, the battered gunman observed:

"Those two guys are better off than I am. I wish I had got what they got. I've got to sit and take it."

At another time, Dalhover was reported as saying:

"I'm not a born killer. If I was, I'd have bumped Brady off long ago. He was too ritzy."

Dalhover said that he had one of his infrequent quarrels with Shaffer an hour before the deadly encounter with the G-men and police. He said he had taken his younger ally to task for visiting Bangor too often, adding that the sporting goods store setup looked "phoney."

When captured, the bandit displayed none of the courage and daring of which the gang so openly bragged, according to Police Inspector John Hayes of Bangor.

After he had been marched to the rear of the store and hancuffed, the bad man hysterically pleaded:

"Don't shoot me! Don't kill me!"

In the county jail, he has been placed under continual guard. His hands have been bound with a specially made belt. He is allowed to use only a spoon at meal time.

BARES "SCRAP BOOK"

While eating, he told officers of a scrap book kept by the gang as a memento of their accomplishments in crime.

Myron Gurney, head of the G-men detail, today announced the case was "far from cleared up." He said he had made a complete report to his superiors in Washington and that "several angles are being followed up."

Meanwhile, he prepared to send to his chief, Edgar J. Hoover, a complete arsenal including a "tommy" gun, several revolvers and a quantity of ammunition found in the high-powered car used by the mob.

Gurney said that the federal men were still holding the bodies of the slain gunmen, upon which autopsies were performed last night in Eastern Maine General Hospital.

BODIES UNCLAIMED

Neither body has as yet been claimed. It was said that at least 50 slugs in all lodged in the living targets.

Indiana state police, Maine state police and Bangor officers participated in the ambush.

The teamwork of the law enforcement agencies working on the case was lauded last night by Crowley, who declared:

"They did a swell job and acted with the utmost co-operation. The killing of the two gangsters should add to the proof that 'crime does not pay.'

"Their death should be an object lesson to the youth of this country."

At the same time Crowley revealed that for the past week he has had special details assigned to all important banks in this city to watch for the arrival of the Brady mob.

Indiana wants the desperado for the Minneman and Rivers killings.

Ohio charges the gang with the Lindsay murder, a Lima bank robbery, jewelry store hold-ups in Lima, Dayton and Greenville and other crimes.

Baltimore would like to get custody of the prisoner to face charges of attempting to kill two policemen when the gang shot its way to freedom in the Maryland city.

Guards were also placed over Everett Hurd whose tip led to the trapping of the outlaws, and Agent Walsh, recovering from a slight shoulder wound in Eastern Maine General Hospital.

James Seeley, who witnessed the dramatic battle. He was a casualty, for a splinter of glass lodged in the eye to which he is pointing.

Actors and Scenes in Bandit Death Drama

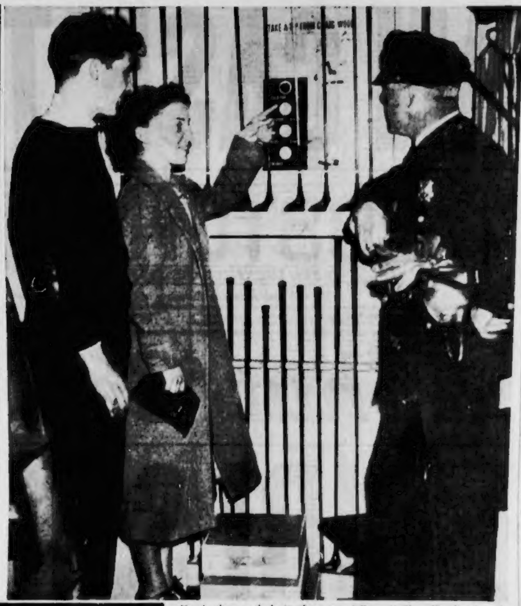
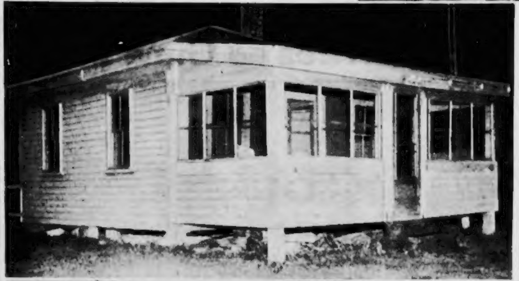
Spared from death from blazing guns by his capture a few seconds before, James Dalhover, Brady gang survivor, looks out through cell bars at Bangor to a future as bleak as the sudden end of his two pals. Dalhover faces return to Indiana and probable death on the gallows there for the gang murder of two policemen in that state.



Here's the peephole in the rear of Everett Shep Hurd's store in Bangor where G-man Frankenstein kept watch for the return of the gangsters after Hurd gave the tip-off. In photo Miss Ann Webber is pointing out the location of the peephole to Louis LaCrosse and Patrolman J. H. Kennedy of Bangor, who helped work on the case.



Here's where the Brady gang of killers plotted the campaign of crime in Maine which G-men nipped so effectively yesterday with fatal gun-fire. Exterior of hideout in Carmel auto rest camp, 15 miles from Bangor.

Everett Shep Hurd points here to the entry in his store books recording the sale of .45 calibre automatics to two of the Brady gang. These entries later proved to be a "date with death" for the mobsters.

Underworld Breathes Easier With Brady Dead

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Several Chicago underworld characters breathed easier today upon learning federal agents had wiped out the Al Brady gang at Bangor, Me.

Brady, according to police information, had sworn vengeance against eight gunmen and a fence who hijacked $50,000 from him and his associates.

The hi-jacking was said to have occured April 12, 1936, when eight men with guns surprised Brady and his gang in a Chicago flat where they were negotiating with the fence for disposal of the loot.

Police said Brady also attributed his capture here April 29, 1936, to the hi-jackers. He was seized in a Chicago hotel with his woman companion, Mrs. Margaret Barker Larson, whom he had met in New Orleans.

Acting on secret information, police drilled into a vault at the Uptown Safety Deposit Company May 7, 1936, and uncovered the hijacked loot, which was identified as stolen from Ohio jewelry stores.

Mrs. Larson, then 21, a former Chicago high school girl, told police she met Brady at the New Orleans Mardi Gras in 1936. Police said she was in New Orleans with her husband, Chester Larson, to whom she was married five years and whom she deserted to go with Brady.

"I never knew Al was a robber," she said. "He told me he was a gambler."

Clarence Shaffer, Jr., who with Brady was killed yesterday in Bangor, blamed Mrs. Larson for the Chicago capture.

"If Brady had left women alone," he said at that time, "we wouldn't be here (in custody) now. She told us to park the car and leave the junk (weapons, ammunition and disguises) in it, wanting us to stay in a hotel all night instead of leaving town."

Federal agents said they understood Mrs. Larson had returned to her husband after her brief association with Brady and that the Larsons were residing somewhere in Chicago.

Bangor Police Aid Hailed by G-Men

Maine Men Played Part in Ambush of Bradyites

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 13—Smashing of the Brady gang of "pint-sized" killers here yesterday is called a perfect example of co-operation between police and G-men.

Police Chief Thomas I. Crowley, acted swiftly when Everett Hurd, sporting goods store proprietor, notified him strangers were in town buying guns and ammunition.

Hurd was carefully instructed to "stall them off" the next time they entered the store, which he did by telling the desperadoes he would have to send for ammunition they ordered.

FLASHES WORD

Crowley, meanwhile, flashed word to G-men headquarters in Washington. The 15 federal operatives who participated in the spectacular gun battle in Central street brought pictures of the nation's most feared fugitives with them.

In this manner, the identity of the gangsters was established.

Indiana state police, seeking to avenge the murder of one of their number by the Brady gang, were also notified.

POLICE AID AMBUSH

When yesterday's ambush was set, Chief Crowley's men were assigned stations fully as important as those given to the G-men and Indiana police.

The federal men today made no secret of the high esteem in which they hold Chief Crowley and his fellow officers for the important role they played in the destruction of the Bradyites.

Chief of Police Thomas I. Crowley of Bangor, whose suspicions first were aroused when Merchant Hurd told him of the visit to his store.

Author Spivak Links U. S. Nazis With Klan

State Probers Told of German Propaganda Spending Here

American Nazi are "tied up" with the Ku Klux Klan, John L. Spivak, author and former central European correspondent, today told a special legislative committee investigating Massachusetts subversive organizations.

Spivak also testified at the State House hearing that Nazi Germany spends $2,500,000 annually in this country "to finance propaganda."

Spivak, who has been investigating Nazi activities in this country in a "roving commission" for two nationally known magazines, was asked to testify before the legislative commission by Massachusetts labor leaders, Jewish war veterans, clergymen and educators.

At the request of these persons the committee's probe into statewide Communistic activities was temporarily suspended to focus the investigation spotlight on Nazism.

QUOTES HUNTER

In his testimony before the committee, headed by Senator Sybil H. Holmes of Brookline, Spivak named Edward H. Hunter of Boston as the distributor of Nazi propaganda in New England.

He said Hunter was executive secretary of the Industrial Defense Association whose offices are on Federal street. Hunter, Spivak declared, came here in 1926 from Manchester, N. H., as a private detective engaged in labor activities.

Spivak read from a letter which, he said, was a copy of that sent by Hunter to Baron von Tippleskirch, German consul in Boston, March 3, 1934.

He quoted Hunter as writing that he was sending the consul, under separate cover, 25 copies of the "swan song of hate." Spivak further read from the letter:

"If we can get money from Germany we could start a real campaign along lines we want. We can return America to Americans by organizing the victims of Judaism."

Spivak said he gave the original letter to Congressman John W. McCormack of Boston, chairman of the Congressional committee investigating subversive activities.

TELLS OF SMUGGLING

Last spring, Spivak testified, he talked with Herman Schwinn of Los Angeles.

"I told him," Spivak continued, "that he was in charge of smuggling propaganda into the United States for distribution here, in Canada and Mexico.

"He admitted the distribution but denied the smuggling. Schwinn admitted to me that the Industrial Defense Association is the outlet for propaganda in New England through Edward Hunter."

Spivak declared that Harry A. Jung, director of the Chicago office of the Industrial Defense Association, has helped to organize anti-Semitic propaganda in this country.

"Jung's first lieutenant," he said, "is Gale Carter, leader of the Illinois Klan."

He said that Carter and Peter Armstrong, a Russian immigrant who came to this country in 1923, are the editors of an anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic paper, "The American Gentile."

Duke Hitler's Trailer Guest

Nazis Heil Him; Pace Too Fast for Wally

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor's motor trip to Croessinsee Castle, where future Nazi leaders are trained, was like a triumphal procession today.

In every hamlet and village, crowds stood cheering and shouting "heil" as he passed in Reichfuehrer Hitler's new limousine, a glorified house-trailer, equipped with a bar, kitchen, telephone and other conveniences.

The duke made use of the bar by inviting foreign correspondents, following in a motor bus, to have a drink with him.

After inspecting the castle at Stettin, the former king took lunch with 500 Nazi "officers" charged with instruction of future leaders.

The Duchess, who has found the pace set by their German hosts too fatiguing, decided to remain in Berlin, and to visit Potsdam this afternoon.

Beauty's 3 Kisses Pay For Melrose Victory

Here's the story of a girl who paid off a bet with a kiss and the tale of a news photographer with a heart of gold:

Last week, pretty Eleanor Robson of Highland avenue, Malden, made a bet with Jack Cain of Bennett street, Cambridge, that Malden would beat Melrose in their game.

Eleanor works in a Faneuil Hall restaurant and Jack Cain is a market man.

Melrose won, 15 to 7. And the payoff was that, at 8 o'clock this morning, Eleanor had to stand on the open platform of a market truck in crowded Dock square and kiss Mr. Cain.

Promptly on the hour she was carried from her work and stood right up on the truck.

A good scout at heart, Eleanor paid. And amid cheers and shouts did Jack Cain object?

Here's where the cameraman came in. Those news photographers get everywhere, and one was beside the truck.

"Hold it!" he said. "I want another!"

So Mr. Cain went back for more. Another interval.

"Another!" said the cameraman. "Just to be sure!"

So, through his good offices, Mr. Cain got a payoff for his bet that made him the envy of every man in sight.

Let's see now, next week Melrose plays . . .

Pick 6th Woman On Hahn Jury

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13 (AP)—A sixth woman juror was seated tentatively today after Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, 31-year-old German blonde returned to a crowded courtroom for resumption of her trial on a poison murder charge.

Seating of Mrs. Magdalene Mitchell, middle-aged housewife, brought to eight the number of tentative jurors. Included are two men, an automobile mechanic and a Negro laborer.

The 31-year-old German immigrant is being tried on a charge of administering a fatal poison to Jacob Wagner, 78. She has been indicted similarly in the death of 67-year-old George Gsellman, another acquaintance in the old "Over the Rhine" or German portion of the city.

Artist Prince Wins

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 13 (AP)—Major R. Glover's Prince won the 98th running of the Cambridgeshire Stakes today. B. Glasspool's Red Squaw was second and W. Thorpe's Inchkeith third.

Picture in Advertiser Solves Mystery

Mrs. Evelyn Young, 50, of Gordon street, Somerville, amnesia victim found wandering along a highway in Sudbury a month and a half ago, was identified today through a newspaper photograph that appeared in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Mrs. Young was found by Chief of Police Senaca Hall and taken to Westboro State Hospital, where she has been since. She was not reported as missing, and so state police, who worked on the case, were not able to check her name against their list of missing persons.

Her sister, Mrs. Mabel Cameron, of Payson road, Belmont, saw her picture in the paper and notified police.

Bostonians Given Audience by Pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Oct. 13 (AP)—Pope Pius today granted an audience to 71 Americans, including Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dalton and Judge Thomas F. Quinn, of Boston.

Youth's Burial Halted, Cregg Orders Autopsy

District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County today held up the burial of John Rakavitch, 20, of Tremont street, Peabody, pending an autopsy by the medical examiner.

The youth was found dead Saturday in his employer's automobile in a garage in Holten street, Peabody, a day after he started on a new job as chauffeur.

Rakavitch was to have been buried in Fairview Cemetery, Hyde Park.

Medical Examiner Joseph W. P. Murphy of Peabody, who said Rakavitch died of monoxide poisoning, reported a verdict of "probably accidental."

Dr. Murphy conferred with the district attorney after Peabody police reported that Boston police informed them that relatives of Rakavitch had complained to them that there were "holes in the back of the head" of the dead youth.

The body of Rakavitch had been claimed by his father, who lives in Boston. The youth had been living with his mother and stepfather, Frank Billaur.

Dr. Murphy would not comment on the report concerning the "holes in the back of the head," but said that there was discoloration because of the monoxide poisoning. He left for Boston immediately.

A friend of Rakavitch, Miss Lillian Cermak, 17, of Linehan's court, Peabody, had told the youth about the chauffeuring job which he obtained with a Peabody leather merchant, according to police.

Rakavitch was found behind the wheel of the car, the motor of which was running, police said. The garage doors and windows were closed. His employer discovered the body.

Sabotage Clues Found on U. S. Cruiser

Discover Metal, File In Gear Boxes on Vincennes

Evidence of sabotage on the navy's newest heavy cruiser, Vincennes, was reported at Washington today to the navy high command by a board of investigation.

The board held its investigation after extensive damage was done to the reduction gears in the heavy cruiser while the warship was undergoing dock trials at the Boston Navy Yard.

The cruiser is now at South Boston dry dock.

FILE IS FOUND

While undergoing the trials, strange noises developed in one set of reduction gears. The gear box was opened and a stray piece of metal which the board found could not have become detached from any portion of the interior was found to have stripped the gears.

The other three gear boxes were opened, and while two were found in perfect condition, in the third a file was found. This tool was not of navy issue.

The board stated that the foreign bodies were "possibly placed there by a person unknown" but that it could have been accidental.

The Vincennes was built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's plant at Quincy. It was launched February 24, 1937, and is the newest of the navy's heavy cruisers.

S. S. QUINCY INCIDENT

It was recalled at the Navy Department that the Vincennes' sister ship, the Cruiser Quincy, also built at the Fore River plant, likewise had gear trouble under similar circumstances while on trial.

The Quincy was undergoing trials off Boston when its gears were stripped and when the gear box was opened up it was found that a spanner wrench was in the gear box.

Also while the Quincy was being built a fire of mysterious origin developed in the auxiliary machinery engine room and spread to the aft engine room. This was in August, 1935.

Power of Press! Boy Gets Giraffes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Four new giraffes were due at the Washington Zoo today after a trip halfway around the world, and Nicky Arundel's joy was almost complete.

Nicky, 9-year-old editor of "Nicky's News," a neighborhood newspaper, had campaigned editorially for giraffes when the zoo had none. He now is working to get a larger lunch room on the grounds.

Wall St. Lawyer Plunges Off Liner

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—Robertson Honey, Jr., of New York, son of the one-time American consul to Bermuda and member of a Wall Street law firm, fell or leaped to his death yesterday from the Monarch of Bermuda returning from a Bermuda cruise, it was disclosed today.

Now They'll Steal Bark Without Dog

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 13 (AP)—What would you do with an empty hot dog?

Thieves broke into the U. and S. Beef & Provisions plant during the night and stole $1600 worth of—a police report vouched for it—sausage casings.

2 Wives, 1 Man Total Trouble

Allied against the man who wed them both, Gabrielle Bleignier of Somerville (left), waits beside Mary D'Alessandro of the Bronx, New York, on a bench at Somerville police station, to tell her story. Their husband, Frank Marino of Somerville, languishes in an upstairs cell. The two women met three days ago and now are "good friends." Both want annulments of their marriages. Marino faces polygamy charges.

Butcher Held As Bigamist

Charge Somerville Man Wed 2 Girls

Frank Marino, 29-year-old butcher's assistant, was arrested by Somerville police today, charged with being the husband of two young and attractive girls.

Marino was arrested in his home after the mother of a third girl, whom he is also alleged to have intended marrying, complained.

One, Mary D'Allessandro, 27, of the Bronx, New York, police said, asserted that Marino married her in New York in 1932 and that she had lived with him ever since, except when he was out of town.

Soft-spoken Gabrielle Bleignier of Somerville, police said, also declared that he married her in Philadelphia only a short time ago.

They moved to Somerville some weeks ago and have been living there, police said she told them.

Marino's alleged "Somerville wife" went to New York a few days ago, at the invitation of the mother of Marino's alleged fiancee. There she met the first Mrs. Marino, police were told.

The two joined forces, appealed to Somerville police. Both intend to ask that their marriages be annulled.

Marino, taken into custody by Sergt. Joseph A. Dwyer and officers George R. Allen and Herbert Stokes, will appear in Somerville district court tomorrow.

Economies Seen Boston Need

Charging that the mayoralty campaign ought to revolve around "a compelling need for economy" the Boston Municipal Research Bureau asked today that candidates consider the record-high tax rate and borrowing to pay expenses.

The bureau referred to the campaign as one which should concentrate on "basic problems."

It stated that the next mayor must face the crisis of shrinking revenues and mounting costs of government and that the bureau was not interested in any candidate as a "personality."

The report asserted that Boston's tax rate was higher than in other large cities and that during the depression $70,000,000 was borrowed for permanent improvements.

Gives Away 37 Millions

British Auto Magnate Through—For Awhile

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lord Nuffield, 60-year-old British automobile manufacturer, explained today why he has given away $37,000,000 in the last 18 months—and why he isn't going to give any more away for a long time.

"I feel it is up to anyone who has more money than he requires to help the less fortunate, especially those who were not blessed with such health as I have.

"The idea that it is easy to give money always was the biggest fallacy in the world. It has caused me 500 per cent more trouble since I started than my entire business."

U. S. Envoy Slain By Boston Man's Son

Tragic Killing Result of Visa Being Lost in Mails

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 13 (AP)—The laying of Consul-General James Theodore Marriner was attributed today to a tragic mistake—a letter going astray in the mails.

The United States official was shot yesterday by an Armenian, Meguerdich Karayan, who, police said, gave as his reason that he felt "insulted" because his request for a passport visa was refused.

Actually, it developed that the consulate general had granted Karayan a visa, but the letter informing him of the fact was never delivered, the Armenian having changed his address.

The body of Marriner will be sent to his mother in the United States after a memorial service today at the American Church of Beirut.

Alfred Tabet, Lebanese attorney general, said Karayan, 29, returned to Syria from the United States in 1934 to live at Aleppo.

Tabet said the Armenian's father, John Karayan, lives in Boston, Mass.

(A Reuters (British) news agency dispatch to London said that Meguerdich Karayan, arrested after the killing of Marriner, asserted he was a naturalized subject of the United States. He said he was born in Turkey 29 years ago.

The prisoner gave his United States address as St. Botolph street, Boston, and said he left America because of ill health.)

One Wave, Out Plunges Flier

Army Private Learns Leap was for Naught

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 13 (AP)—When an army pilot in the cockpit waves his hand it means but one thing to Private Frank Strozier—dangerous engine trouble.

So when Major L. A. Dayton waved yesterday, Strozier parachuted to earth near here.

He was not missed until Dayton landed at Valparaiso, Fla. He telephoned to the army field here to find out what happened to his passenger. When Strozier explained, the major told him why he waved:

"I was cold. I wanted you to close the cockpit, not empty it."

Father of 2 Held In Attack on Girl

James F. Spillman, 28, of Washington street, Newton, father of two children, was held under $2500 bail for continuance to October 21 in Newton court today after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery on a six-year-old girl.

According to police, Spillman, who was arrested last night, enticed the girl into his apartment after giving her 25 cents.

Mother Denies Kresge Girl to Wed Film Man

DETROIT, Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Anna E. Kresge, mother of Anne E. Kresge, denied today that her daughter and Marshall Duffield, a movie director, plan to marry.

"There is nothing to it," the 10-cent store heiress' mother said. "I just returned from California a few days ago and saw both of them. Their friends have been talking about this rumor. I don't believe a bit of the gossip.

"Anne has no particular interest in Mr. Duffield. She treats him like any of her boy friends.

"Mr. Duffield has been in Detroit and visited with us. He is a very fine young man. But there is nothing like that between them.

"I think I would know about it if such a thing were true. They like to get the Kresges' name mixed up in things like this."

The Detroit society girl took a brief fling at dramatics in 1932 and the next year worked incognito as a mannequin in a dress shop here.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 (AP)—Anne Kresge, 5-and-10-cent-store heiress, and Marshall Duffield, former football star, flew toward Detroit today, but denied that the trip is for the purpose of winning parental consent for marriage.

Duffield insisted their flight had no romantic significance and that he would continue on to New York.

Frequently a twosome in the Hollywood social whirl, they had been described by friends as on the verge of matrimony if the Kresge family approved.

Advertiser Has Scoop on Congress

Announcement by President Roosevelt of a special session of Congress to begin November 15 confirms International News Service dispatches published exclusively in the Boston Sunday Advertiser as far back as editions of September 26.

A scoop on that day by Cecil B. Dickson of the INS Washington staff announced the President had decided to call a special session in November. This was followed up by another scoop in October 4 editions of the Boston Evening American by Arthur Hachten of the Washington INS staff, announcing November 15 as the most likely date for the session.

President Glad People Study Bill of Rights

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today the people were "rightly" talking freedom of religion and the press, just as they did 150 years ago when New York State ratified the federal Constitution.

Coming here from Hyde Park as a "neighbor," the Chief Executive spoke before a crowd of several thousand at the laying of the corner-stone of the new postoffice.

RECALLS ISAAC ROOSEVELT

The ceremony was the first of the day's events culminating a three-day celebration of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of this community as a Hudson trading post.

In tracing the history of the town, the President recalled another milestone—the constitutional convention here which his great-great-grandfather, Isaac Roosevelt, attended as a delegate.

He said the deadlock at that convention between the Clintonians and Hamiltonians was over whether the Constitution should be ratified in the absence of a Bill of Rights.

TELLS OF BILL OF RIGHTS

"The people then talked about freedom of religion and the press, just as they are rightly doing today," he said.

He went on to say it took the leadership of his home county of Dutchess to suggest a compromise—that the Constitution be ratified, with the understanding that a Bill of Rights should be incorporated at the earliest possible moment. The compromise won, and the Bill of Rights was later put in, he said.

Frey Asks U. S. Oust 3 From Labor Board

A. F. L. Says Members Active in Behalf Of the CIO

DENVER, Oct. 13 (AP)—John P. Frey, president of the American Federation of Labor's metal trades department, today demanded the removal of three National Labor Relations Board officials for what he said was their activity in behalf of the CIO.

They are Regional Directors Ellnore Herrick of New York, Mrs. Rossiter of San Francisco and Dr. Howard Meyers of Boston.

All three, Frey said, "were trying to build up the membership of the CIO" at the A. F. of L.'s expense.

Frey made this demand during debate on a report from the A. F. of L. convention resolutions committee recommending that the board's powers be curbed.

As for the board itself, Frey said the A. F. of L. respected the "integrity" of Chairman J. Warren Madden, but that the federation's attitude toward the other two members, Edwin S. Smith and Donald Wakefield Smith, was "not the same."

SAYS LEWIS FETED

He told the convention that Smith gave a private dinner in Washington last June at which John L. Lewis, CIO leader, and the counsellor of the Russian embassy were guests.

At the time, Frey said, many cases involving CIO, AF of L disputes were pending before the board.

Lewis and the Russian diplomat, Frey asserted, "had much in common."

"One wanted Communism spread as rapidly as possible,' he said.

"The other had Communists on his payroll.

Asking the convention, "What are the implications?" Frey expressed an opinion that a judge who entertained a principal in a pending case would be "promptly and properly impeached.'

Repeatedly during the last year, Frey said, when the A. F. of L. asked the board for elections, they were delayed "to give the CIO more time to organize." On the other hand, he said, when the CIO asked for an election, it was promptly granted.

ATTACK LABOR BOARD

Frey maintained that the board, instead of promoting the right of voluntary association of working men, had been busy destroying that right.

The resolutions committee called on the convention to seek an end to "usurped authority now being exercised" by the labor board in adjustment of labor disputes.

The report said:

"Accumulated evidence has made it evident that the regional representatives of the board on many occasions have endeavored to negotiate, to conciliate, mediate and, in some instances, to compel the adjustment of an industrial dispute, in the face of vigorous protests or organized workers involved."

Federation leaders sustained by an overwhelming vote of confidence from member unions, stood committed today to reject any proposals for ending organized labor's civil war which, in their opinion, were "dictated" by the rival CIO.

A CIO proposal for a 200-man "peace" conference was rejected scornfully as "insincere" by William Green, A. F. of L. president.

Lawyers Honors Dead Justice

Members of the Massachusetts Bar Association will pay tribute to the memory of Judge John Mellen Gibbs as funeral services for the Superior Court justice are held tomorrow at Christ church, Waltham. The Rev. George O. Ekwall will officiate at services starting at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham.

Judge Gibbs, for eight years on the Superior Court bench, died suddenly Monday at the age of 64, stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Deal to Seek High Court Reversals

Notice Given by U. S. Solicitor-General in Tax Argument

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—The Supreme Court was informed today that the Roosevelt administration will not hesitate to propose that the court reverse historic decisions on constitutional questions.

The notice to the court, given by U. S. Solicitor-General Stanley Reed in argument in tax cases, was accepted as the beginning of an effort to wipe out a long line of what the New Deal considers "conservative" decisions.

With Justice Hugo L. Black, former Senatorial supporter of the administration, now sitting unchallenged on the bench in place of retired Justice Willis Van Devanter, the administration apparently hopes to reverse many 5-to-4 and other rulings.

Challenge of the court's original ruling outlawing the AAA, decided by a 6-to-3 vote, when a new crop control bill is passed, was regarded as a certainty. The court's ruling on NRA may be challenged in new wage-hour legislation.

Asking the court to reverse three past decisions in tax cases, Solicitor General Reed said:

"The government does not think the rule that questions have been decided is so important in the consideration of constitutional questions as in cases affecting private litigants.

BUTLER RAPS PLEA

"It is difficult to change the Constitution. If there has been error in its construction, it is important that it be corrected."

The court had before it cases involving the question of whether gross receipts taxes of the States of West Virginia and Washington on contracts on government dams is constitutional. The Department of Justice urged the court to uphold the taxes.

The government's request to the court to reverse rulings in three past cases—and even reverse the contention of the Department of Justice last year—brought tart comment from Justice Butler.

He questioned Reed on a decision of the court last year, written by Butler, in which the court held invalid an Alabama tax on gasoline sold to the government.

"In that case, you asked us to hold the tax unconstitutional," said Justice Butler. "I wrote the opinion and followed your brief. Now you want us to revise that. In that case, you came in as a friend of the court to save the government from the added cost."

DEAL ABOUT FACES

Conceding the government had changed its position, Reed said the increasing expansion of both state and federal activities makes it necessary to hold open all sources of tax revenue possible.

Should the court reverse past decisions and uphold the West Virginia and Washington taxes, cost of building dams would be increased, Reed conceded. But, he said, the advantage in holding open sources of tax revenue to both state and federal governments would be a great advantage to both.

President Maps Plan to 'Drive' Congress

Seeks to Enact New Legislation by Christmas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt, ordering a special session of Congress November 15, instituted a campaign today to enact by Christmas, if possible, the bulk of his legislative program sidetracked in the last session.

Administration officials expressed hope for swift congressional approval of five measures outlined by the chief executive last night in his tenth "fireside chat:"

1. Crop production control to "build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable."

2. Wage and hour standards to "make millions of our lowest-paid workers actual buyers of billions of dollars of industrial and farm products."

3. Regional planning to conserve natural resources, prevent floods and produce electric power for general use.

4. Government reorganization to provide "twentieth century machinery" to make the democratic process work more efficiently."

5. Stronger anti-trust laws in furtherance of "a low price policy which encourages the widest possible consumption."

FORESHADOW ROW

The proposals foreshadowed bitter and perhaps prolonged controversy.

Mr. Roosevelt characterized the program as one which the American people need immediately to provide prosperity.

"The kind of prosperity we want," he said, "is the sound and permanent kind which is not built up temporarily at the expense of any section or group."

There was no mention in Mr. Roosevelt's speech of his court reorganization program which upset the legislative machinery in the regular 1937 session. He apparently was referring to Supreme Court reversals, however, when he said the people had been "checked" in efforts to control production and secure wage-hour standards.

MAKES PEACE PLAN

The President's renewed plea for active steps to preserve peace was interpreted by many observers today as designed to quiet criticism that his policy of international co-operation might lead to war. In this connection he said:

"In a world of mutual suspicions, peace must be affirmatively reached for. It cannot just be wished for. It cannot just be waited for."

Thus, the President prefaced a formal announcement of the United States' intention to participate in the forthcoming nine-power treaty conference on the Sino-Japanese conflict.

He added significantly, recalling his service as wartime assistant secretary of the navy:

"Remember that from 1913 to 1921, I was fairly close to world events, and in that period, while I learned much of what to do, I also learned much of what not to do."

To many observers, this appeared to be an expression of an intention to pursue a moderate course in foreign affairs.

Foley in Blast At Langone As Curley Chief

Torchlight Parade Tonight; Manser Offers to Quit

First torchlight parade of the mayoralty campaign is scheduled for tonight when supporters of District Attorney William J. Foley stage an old-fashioned political procession through the streets of his home section, South Boston.

The demonstration will conclude with a Foley rally in the municipal building in Broadway, that section.

Foley last night predicted that Italian-American voters of Boston will repudiate former Governor James M. Curley because he is being publicly supported by State Senator Joseph A. Langone of North End.

"Langone was Curley's chief-of-staff at the State House and his present avowal of friendship and support of the resident of Jamaicaway should serve as warning to all citizens of Boston that another four years of Curley will mean rule of the city by Langone and his like," Foley said.

HITS WORKERS AT TRACK

Former Representative Alfred Santosuosso of Hyde Park declared that if elected he will require city employes to work a full day. Some city workers are now employed at race tracks during hours when they should be serving the municipal government, he said.

Former Governor Curley stated today that he will work for improvement of transportation facilities in Hyde Park and West Roxbury if elected to a fourth term at City Hall.

Traffic lights are sadly needed in many spots throughout the city, Curley said, and if elected he will ask state authorities to provide $2,000,000 annually from the highway fund for installation of these signals at dangerous intersections.

CALL TO PARKMAN

Charles L. Manser, Back Bay Republican candidate for mayor, last night invited former State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., to enter the contest as the nominee of that party and offered to withdraw from the fight himself, substituting Parkman's name for his own on nomination papers now on file at the municipal election commission.

Manser stated that he entered the contest as the "100 per cent Republican candidate" only after Parkman had let it be known that he would not be on the ballot.

Republicans who in the past have been a party to election of fusion candidates to public office have always been "sold out," Manser charged in the course of an appeal for the united support of all members of his political party in this election.

School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin today declared that he is the only man who can defeat former Governor Curley and former Mayor Nichols on November 2.

"A vote for any other candidate is one thrown away," he said.

China Refugees Drive Launched

Civic and social leaders launched a drive in Boston today to collect funds, clothing and medical supplies for the relief of refugees from the war zone in China.

Boston's fire and police stations were used as collection bases at the order of Mayor Mansfield.

Pen Experts Will Study Vote Lists

Timilty Links Probe With Writing on Nomination Papers

sioner's announcement Chairman Shaw revealed that his department had been conducting a secret drive against alleged "mattress voters" of this city since October 2.

"Two names have already been stricken from the voting lists as a result of this investigation," Shaw declared.

"Daniel B. and James F. Butler were police listed from 60 Lawrence street, Charlestown, on January 1 last. Last month both men came to City Hall and registered as voters, declaring that their present address is 340 Meridian street, East Boston.

"As a result of information which came to me I ordered registered letters sent each of the men at the East Boston address, instructing them to appear before the Election Commission to show cause why their names should not be removed from the voting lists.

12 TO FACE PROBE

"The registered letters came back with a notation that the parties were unknown at the address given. Their names were stricken from the voting list October 2."

Shaw declared that about six other persons have had their names stricken from the voting lists since last June because of irregularities.

Earlier today Shaw announced that of 130 Charlestown vote listings furnished him by police 12 persons had registered as voters.

Shaw declared that he was summoning the 12 persons to appear before the commission tomorrow noon to prove that they are residents at addresses cited on the January 1 police listings.

Meanwhile a special squad of crack police, smashing all precedents, turned their resources against fellow officers to ferret out "the traitors" responsible for the fraudulent listings in Charlestown.

All the while, tips and inside information from numerous sources, which may be recorded in the probe of alleged wholesale spurious potential voters, continued to enlarge a pile of evidence at police headquarters and prove that the fraud has taken place on a city-wide scale.

This information, most of it considered frankly partisan and prejudiced by officials investigating the election fraud scandal, will be carefully combed before investigation is finished, Police Commissioner Timilty said.

Meanwhile, the special investigation squad, noted for its activities in pursuit of racketeers, con men and dope agents, today turned its sleuthing skill against the patrolmen farther down in the department, from whose reports the police lists in Charlestown were compiled.

Working jointly with these investigators are handwriting experts who, if necessary, will compare specimens of alleged fake signatures found on the police cards with previous specimens of handwriting of the police under scrutiny.

FRATERNALISM OUT

"Fraternalism" among police officers will not save those responsible in any degree, Police Commissioner Timilty asserted.

"These men can no longer be considered as brother officers," the commissioner instructed his racket investigators.

"I am anxious to get at the men behind this padding scheme, as well as the officers who were involved with them," challenged Timility.

Nichols Polls Heaviest Vote Of Day

Fitzgerald Runnerup, Curley Still Holds Lead

By FRANK K. REILLY

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols received the largest vote cast today in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser mayoralty straw vote. His total for the day was 322 ballots.

President John I. Fitzgerald of the Boston City Council, who has made a poor showing recently, received 119 votes today. Charles L. Manser, Back Bay Republican, was third today with 94 votes.

Former Governor James M. Curley and Attorney Alfred Santosuosso of Hyde Park each received 50 ballots today. School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin's vote today was 23 while Carleton L. Brett, Social Justice candidate, received two and former State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook was credited with one.

Twelve votes were cast today for District Attorney William J. Foley.

Otis Archer Hood, the Communist nominee, was the only candidate to draw a blank today. Hood has consistantly made a poor showing.

Today's mails brought 673 ballots, bringing the total received since the begining of the mayoralty straw poll to 43,857.

Complete vote to date for each of the contenders is:

James M. Curley	15,811
William J. Foley	12,188
Maurice J. Tobin	5,677
Malcolm E. Nichols	4,535
Alfred Santosuosso	3,179
John I. Fitzgerald	1,363
Carleton L. Brett	614
Charles L. Manser	270
Alonzo B. Cook	73
Otis Archer Hood	31

Similar polls conducted by these newspapers in the past indicated the election of Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield in 1933 and of United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and Governor Charles F. Hurley in 1936. Mail your ballot today.

Why 81 Hairs Die Unborn Each Day

THE average healthy scalp sheds and grows 81 hairs each day. It is natural for hair to fall out—but it is also natural for new hair to replace that which falls. Obviously, then, baldness comes only when some unnatural condition, such as dandruff, keeps the hair-growing structure from replacing falling hair.

In order to help your scalp to grow hair naturally, you must (1) keep it clean; (2) keep it free from infection; and (3) stimulate the sources of nourishment. Thomas treatment helps you to accomplish these ends. Proper cleansing methods are provided; dandruff and other local infections are overcome; and the sources of nourishment are gently stimulated. Come in today for a FREE scalp examination and learn more about this reliable, proved scalp treatment.

• Above diagram shows dormant hair (E) in bald scalp; (D) shrunken sebaceous glands; (F) nerves and blood vessels in need of stimulation.

• Diagram at right shows (B) normal healthy hair; (A) healthy sebaceous glands; (C) nerves and blood vessels functioning normally.

INDUSTRY

Looks to New England

The character of an industrial community, like that of an individual, is determined by its success in meeting new problems and in overcoming obstacles. Through the changing years, New England's record of progress gives abundant evidence of steady and courageous business leadership.

* * *

The trend of recent years toward greater decentralization in manufacturing activity is now directing special attention to this section. Home of diversified industry, more than 14,000 New England factories make 220 lines of products. Near at hand are great mass markets and readily available is a large supply of skilled, intelligent labor.

* * *

Industry finds other advantages, too, when it looks to New England. The facilities available in the banking field are indicated, for example, by the outstanding strength and cooperative spirit of the National Shawmut Bank . . . which throughout more than one hundred years has provided steady service to the business community.

Run-off Primaries Call Out Voters in Ten Cities

Spirited campaigning of mayoralty and other municipal candidates in 10 cities ended as the voters went to the polling booths today to cast their ballots for their nominees in the run-off primaries.

The first voter cast his ballot in Lynn shortly after the polling booth opened at 5:45 a. m.

Primaries are being held in Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Everett, Waltham, Springfield, Pittsfield, Westfield and Gardner.

The elections in these cities will be held on November 2.

At the break of dawn, campaign workers were stationed at the voting booths, with automobiles to transport the voters from their homes. Many of the first to appear at the voting booths were women.

In many of the cities the electorate will vote their nominees for the offices of councillor, alderman, assessor and school committee.

RECORD CAMBRIDGE VOTE

The largest vote in Cambridge's long political history is expected with more than 35,000 voters going to the polls. The booths in Cambridge will open at 10 a. m. and close at 8 p. m.

Two candidates out of a field of four, will be nominated for the office of mayor. The present incumbent, Mayor John D. Lynch, banker and druggist, is being opposed by former president of the city council, John W. Lyons; State Senator Arthur F. Blanchard and Attorney William M. West.

In the last election in the University City, Mayor Lynch defeated Lyons by only 259 votes. It is expected that both will be nominated. Eight candidates for the offices of councillor-at-large from a field of 46 will be nominated. Lesser offices include school committee, assessor and ward councillors.

In Lynn Mayor J. Fred Manning is seeking his fifth consecutive term.

Mayor Manning is opposed by a Lynn fireman, William E. Sexton, and Arthur J. Hewis, Jr. Contests are also scheduled for city council and school committee.

Five candidates in Somerville seek nomination for the office of mayor, including the present incumbent, Mayor Leslie E. Knox. Others are John M. Lynch, former president of the board of aldermen, who was the loser in the last election by 250 votes, former Mayor James E. Hagan, Representative Philip Sherman and Dr. John G. Niles.

There are 45 candidates for ward alderman, 34 for alderman-at-large, and 20 for school committee.

Voters in Everett will go to the polls at 8 a. m. The candidates are the present incumbent, Mayor Frank E. Lewis, Rep. Albert E. Morris, John F. Cahill, and former Mayor James E. Roche. There are 143 candidates for office in aldermanic, city council and school committee contests.

A VALUABLE FORMULA

FOR THOSE TROUBLED WITH:

- ACID INDIGESTION
- HEARTBURN
- NERVOUS STOMACH
- CATARRH OF THE STOMACH
- GAS PAINS

due to excess acid

By word of mouth the news has spread that the G. S. Cheney Co. has a famous stomach specialist's prescription that has proven surprisingly successful in remedying many of the common types of ailments of the gastro-intestinal tract. Because of so many inquiries, so many unsolicited testimonials and the thousands of repeat orders for this formula the powder is now put up under the name

CHENEY'S STOMACH POWDER

This powder is compounded from exactly the same ingredients, in the same proportion as the original prescription of one of Boston's noted stomach specialists. While there is no one sovereign remedy for all stomach ills, this powder has given relief to thousands, and is undoubtedly the remedy you would have had prescribed for you if you had gone to this famous specialist with one of the common stomach complaints due to excess acidity.

Try this valuable formula if you suffer from stomach trouble.

Old Law Is Used In Blasphemy Case

WINDSOR, Conn., Oct. 13 (AP)—An ancient and now seldom invoked statute forbidding persons "to blaspheme against God, any person of the Holy Trinity or the Christian religion" is still a workable law in Connecticut, Kenneth Aldridge of Windsor learned when the town court fined him $10 on a charge of blasphemy.

The charge arose from remarks Aldridge allegedly made to Constable Fred Munsell who arrested him on a speeding count.

Proud of Home Town Girl

Proud of the honor which its talented daughter Helen Hughes winner of the Boston American Talent Quest had brought it, civic bodies of Houlton Me., joined in giving her a great banquet, attended by several hundred persons. Before it was over Miss Hughes was showered with gifts, each expressive of good wishes for her success in Hollywood. The photo shows Kenneth Young, representing several organizations, presenting some of them to her.

Helen Hughes in Boston For Hop to Hollywood

Elated—as what girl wouldn't be?—winsome Helen Hughes, winner over 4000 contestants in the Boston Evening American's Talent Quest, returned to Boston today for a stop-over visit before flying to Hollywood.

Laden with gifts, the testimonials of a thousand good wishers showered upon her by her townspeople of Houlton, Me., at a magnificent banquet, this young Emerson College dramatics pupil said good-bye to her classmates in Boston today.

WILL FLY TOMORROW

Tomorrow she will board a giant sleeper plane to glide across states she may some day entertain as a cinema queen, to her rendezvous with fame before the kleig lights at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Hollywood.

That, in itself, is another thrill in Helen's now thrill-packed life.

But the crowning conquest of her sprouting career, begun through the opportunity offered in the American's Talent Quest, will be the picture in which she will have a part in Hollywood.

If there is a modern-day Cinderella, it's Helen Hughes.

A month ago she was a comely, ambitious student at the Back Bay dramatics school, a small town girl from Houlton, Me., with only dreams for a career in pictures.

FATE TAKES HAND

Then fate took a helping hand in her life.

Overnight, she found she stood on the threshold of fame through an entry into motion pictures created for her by the Boston American, and deserved by her own talents.

She has already received the triumph of an overwhelming ovation by her friends and neighbors at Houlton, the thrill of winning the talent quest contest, her pictures in papers, her name before the proud New England public.

A home town girl is making good.

2 Trusties Back After Break

Two youthful trusties of the Concord Reformatory ,who would have gone before a parole board in January and March of next year, were incarcerated there again today after a break for freedom.

They are Arthur Britto, 18, of Salem, due for parole in January, and Adrian Raymond, 19, of Fall River, eligible for parole in March, re-captured by two reformatory officers in Ayer as they walked along the Main street.

The youths had escaped into thick underbrush near the reformatory while enjoying a few hours extra holiday recreation. They were caught about 15 miles away.

Britto was sentenced from Essex Superior Court for larceny of an automobile, Raymond was sentenced from Bristol Superior Court for larceny and breaking and entering a railroad car at Taunton.

G. O. P. Leaders Mourn Mills

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—Former President Herbert Hoover and leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties will serve as honorary pallbearers here tomorrow at the funeral of Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the Treasury.

Prominent Democrats on the list include John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924; Vice-President John N. Garner, Senator Carter Glass and Owen D. Young.

Among the Republicans listed were Alfred M. Landon, the party's nominee for President in the last campaign, and the following members of Mr. Hoover's cabinet: Charles Francis Adams, Walter S. Brown, Arthur W. Hyde, William D. Mitchell, Ray Lyman Wilbur and Patrick N. Hurley.

Medford Man Held In Store Break

Joseph Moody, 21, Hobbs court, Medford, was arrested early today at gun-point by Cambridge police, who said they surprised him in a Sherman street grocery sotre.

Moody was piling up a stack of groceries when police entered with drawn guns, they said.

Drive on Wages, Monopolies

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—The administration projected today a dual industrial program—assistance for America's most poorly paid workers and the breaking up of monopolies.

The cue for the new endeavors came last night in President Roosevelt's radio discussion of special session legislation.

The President declared the government can "free legitimate business" from restraints imposed by "private monopolies and financial oligarchies" and can create billions of dollars in new purchasing power.

A wage and hour bill was proposed by the administration in the last congressional session, but failed to reach a vote in the House after passing the Senate.

Hartford 'Doctor' Held in Clinic Raid

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 13 (INS)—Locked up when he was unable to furnish $1000 bail, Ashby Norman Hazard, 48, of Worcester, Mass., was charged today with illegal practice of medicine following a raid on a "clinic" in this city.

According to police, Hazard was interviewing a woman as they entered his "clinic" in a tenement apartment. Twenty-three other women were waiting in an adjoining room, they said.

So. End Man Dying After 40-Ft. Fall

Arthur Gabree, 47, Genesee street, South End, is dying at City Hospital from injuries sustained when he fell more than 40 feet from a roof to the cement bottom of an airshaft in a nearby house early today.

Gabree suffered a fractured spine, internal injuries and body bruises. Police allege the victim has been despondent lately due to a court case in which he is defendant.

Deal Is Medicine Act, Bankers Are Told

Taxes to Cut School And Church Work, Speaker Says

In a bitter indictment of the New Deal, Henning W. Prentis, Jr., head of the Armstrong Cork Company of Lancaster, Pa., told the American Bankers Association today that the New Dealers act like "medicine" men who can cure our economic ills by charm.

He charged that the heavy taxation of the New Deal, and the many subsidies will result in the loss of free education, and will hinder the work of our churches if allowed to continue.

"The high priests of economic planning are the modern prototypes of the medicine men of our barbaric ancestors," he declared.

"They firmly believe that theirs is re lamagic in modern science and that if an all-powerful government will only utter the proper incantations over modern industry, there will gush forth spontaneously security and plenty for everyone.

FUNDS SLOW UP

"They ignore completely the fact that an all-powerful state has always proved to be the most effective instrument for the exploitation of the masses."

He stated that our educational institutions, unable to get endowments because of high taxes on wealthy citizens, will lose their independence in seeking federal funds with which to carry on.

"This is no idle assertion," he stated. "The insidious process is already at work through the National Youth Adminitration, a body which was never authorized by Congress, but was set up simply by executive fiat.

"I do not claim that the National Youth Administration has ever attached any stipulations to subsidies it has granted to college students.

PUBLICITY FEARED

"But I do know that in one institution of higher learning at least, the executive head and certain leading professors were afraid to take a public stand in the last presidential campaign because of what they feared might happen to those of their students who were receiving financial help from the federal government."

The amount of money spent in Washington on government propaganda would make the average citizen rub his eyes and wonder if this is really America, he said.

CUT IN FUNDS SEEN

Speaking of the church, he declared:

"As I look at the road ahead for religion in this country, I am deeply concerned. Confiscatory taxation seems likely to cut into the income of the church and will certainly diminish the supply of funds necessary to enlarge its educational institutions and extend its missions."

He stated that, while he sad been a Democrat all his life, he felt that the present administration in Washington is likely to destroy representative democratic government in its haste to aid "the lazy and ignorant."

"In a crusading zeal to 'take America over'—to use Professor Tugwell's phrase—our road is moving farther and farther from the original highway of a constitutional representative republic and coming ever closer to the primrose path of the direct rule of temporary majorities," he declared.

Polite Bandits Rob Drug Store

Two armed bandits, who graciously stood aside so Mrs. Mary Conroy, of Linden Park street, a customer, might enter a drug store on the same street in Roxbury after they had just robbed it of $25, were sought by police today.

They forced Joseph Cohen, of Larchmont street, Dorchester, the owner, and Samuel Wyner, of Intervale street, Roxbury, a clerk in the store, into a back room, tied their wrists and made off with receipts in the cash register.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. American Bankers Are Warned of New Needs

The Bankers of America must completely "reorganize their thinking" in order to adapt their methods to the needs of the modern world, H. H. Griswold, president of the First National Bank and Trust Company, Elmira, New York, declared last night at a meeting of the American Bankers' Association at the Hotel Statler.

"We have not realized that the change which we have experienced is a fundamental one and that whether the causes are social, economic or political, or a combination of all three, they are of such a nature as to compel us to reorganize our thinking and face a future which would lead us into paths widely different from those we have been accustomed to follow," he said.

"Our only safety lies in adjusting ourselves to the conditions of the present instead of going along our old course hoping for the appearance of that bright day whose dawn we may never see."

Utah Man Named President of Bankers

Orval Adams Picked As Successor to Tom K. Smith

Orval W. Adams of Utah, first vice-president of the American Bankers Association, was elected president of the association today at the 63rd annual convention at Hotel Statler. He succeeds Tom K. Smith of St. Louis.

Adams, 53 years old, is executive vice-president of the Utah National Bank of Salt Lake City.

His rise to the presidency started two years ago at the New Orleans convention, when he was elected second vice-president after another man had been nominated. The latter withdrew because of the strong sentiment for the Utah banker.

Born in Idaho Falls, Idaho, educated in the Utah State Agricultural College at Logan, Utah, Adams began his banking career as cashier of the Hyrum State Bank, Hyrum, Utah.

He subsequently held other and more important bank posts until rising to his present position. He is a former president of the Utah Bankers' Association.

Adams is married and has six children.

Philip A. Benson, president of the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, N. Y., was elected first vice-president, succeeding Adams, and Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem, N. C., was chosen second vice-president.

HEADED MUTUAL BODY

Hanes is president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in his home city.

Benson is a native of New York city, a graduate of New York University and former president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. He is married and has four children.

Hanes is a former president of the North Carolina Bankers' Association. He is married and has a son and daughter.

Wadsworth Sees Menace From War Debts

Tells Bankers They Balk Normal Relations

The war debts hang "like a cloud" over efforts of the American government to restore normal financial relations with debtor foreign nations, Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, told the American Bankers Association at the Majestic Theater today.

Turning the bankers' attention from national to international problems, Wadsworth, who is chairman of the American Section of the International Chamber of Commerce, declared that it is "unthinkable" that the United States will adopt an isolation policy in regard to commerce.

"In a few short years," he said, "America has changed from a net debtor to the world to its greatest creditor.

MAY BE CLEARED AWAY

"To be sure, the accounts receivable are not all good. Some bonds are in default, some credits frozen. The work of clearing up these debts is under way. Bonds are being adjusted and bought in by debtors as a discount, frozen assets slowly liquidated as a loss.

"In the process of time, the debris of privately owned debt may be cleared away.

"War debts of some ten billion dollars lie peacefully in the Treasury at Washington, their future shrouded in mystery. They hang like a cloud over any effort to stabilize and restore normal financial relations between debtor and creditor.

"They cannot be ignored, must be dealt with and put on a practical basis. The future of our foreign trade depends largely on how this country acts in the role of creditor."

CITES TRADE CONTROL

Later in his address, Wadsworth called attention to the increasing control of foreign trade by the governments of foreign nations as compared to America's comparative freedom to sell what it wishes to whom wishes.

While the bankers spend the day listening to important speeches, their wives and daughters were taken on an especially arranged sightseeing tour of Boston and Cambridge.

Members of the convention will attend a dance to be given this evening in the Imperial ballroom at the Hotel Statler.

Dads Have Day At Laconia

To Sit on Bench to See Sons Play

LACONIA, N. H., Oct. 13 (AP)—The "old man" is to have his day at the Laconia High-Concord High football game Saturday.

Laconia's coach, Paul H. Kenney, has made arrangements to have fathers of players sit on the bench. They will be designated by signs, such as "Dad Stetson," "Dad Monahan," etc.

"We're going to give them a good time," Kenney said, "cigars and even a plug of tobacco if they want it."

Between halves they may sit in and help the coach pick out flaws in the play of their offspring.

Youth Is Caught, Breaks Admitted

An 18-year-old East Boston youth, who, police say, has confessed to several store breaks in that section, was arrested in a Chelsea street plumber's shop early today.

Medford Church Greets Pastor

St. James Church, Medford, will hold its annual reunion and a reception to its new pastor, the Rev. John J. Lynch of Haverhill, tonight and Friday.

A playlet entitled "The Little Flower" will be presented tonight at the Osgood school hall. The festivities Friday night will be held at Pitman Academy.

Dr. Broderick's Condition Poor

Lingering in a critical condition, Dr. Francis S. Broderick, of Boylston street, Back Bay, former City Hospital executive, had not shown any improvement today at that hospital.

He is suffering from a shock and cerebral hemorrhage, physicians say.

Japan Offers Cash For Traitors

Planes Bomb Shanghai Again; Nippon Willing to Pay All Deserters

SHANGHAI, Oct. 13 (INS)—With Anglo-Japanese tension high as a result of yesterday's attack on British embassy automobiles by Nipponese planes, Japan's air force unleashed a new series of raids today on Shanghai and Nanking.

At the same time, other Japanese aircraft zoomed over densely populated native quarters of the city, dropping leaflets urging the populace to surrender because "resistance is useless."

The aerial bombardment of Shanghai, supported by a brisk artillery barrage, was carried out systematically against Chinese defense positions in the Chapei and Kiangwan sectors. The new attack began at dawn and was still progressing at a late hour today.

The raid at Nanking, following a series levelled against the capital yesterday, was carried out during the morning.

The leaflets dropped by the Japanese offered one dollar to every deserter from the Chinese armies. Commenting on this, a Japanese spokesman said:

"We shall soon be getting ready to hand out two million dollars."

Military advices stated Japanese warships steamed 15 miles up the Yangtze river to disembark fresh Japanese troops for an assault against the Chinese "Hindenburg line."

The attack against Nanking was the third suffered by the capital in 24 hours. In yesterday's assaults the Japanese war birds encountered stiff resistance. Chinese officials claimed five Japanese planes were shot down.

Japanese authorities countered with assertions that five Chinese pursuit craft were sent crashing to earth.

Foreshadowing complications involving Italy and Russia as well as Britain, it was revealed passengers in the British automobiles included Soviet Embassy Secretary Shavov and Lieut. Francesco Rilitzi, an Italian naval officer.

Unconfirmed reports stated a similar machine gun attack was also levelled at a Russian embassy car.

Boost French Army Budget

66 Million Increase Asked for Defense

PARIS, Oct. 13 (AP)—An increase of nearly 20 per cent in the French army budget for 1938 was asked today by Minister of National Defense Edouard Daladier.

The minister, in a tentative combination of the ordinary and extraordinary budget submitted to Parliament for study, asked 12,900,000,000 francs (about $425,700,000) for next year, as compared with 10,900,000,000 francs (about $359,700,000) for 1937.

Nearly 10,000 men would be added to the land forces, which already number more than 650,000 in France and her colonies. This total includes mobile guards (militarized police).

Roosevelt's Stand Aids Belgium

Germany Gives Nation Assurances on Neutrality

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (INS)—Reich Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath and the Belgian Minister to Germany today exchanged notes in which Germany recognized the territorial inviolability of Belgium.

Von Neurath's letter stated that in view of the time needed to replace the Locarno Pact, Germany now wished to give neutrality assurances to Belgium, "in a desire to strengthen peaceful relations between the two nations."

The exchange of letters amounted virtually to a declaration of non-aggression, and was interpreted by some observers as a reply by Germany to President Roosevelt's condemnation of war and "international anarchy."

In it Germany guaranteed Belgian neutrality and territorial integrity "under all circumstances"—meaning in the event of war as well as in time of peace. The declaration took the form of an exchange of letters, rather than a formal pact, following negotiations which proceeded on the basis of Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech January 30, assuring the inviolability of Belgian territory.

The new German-Belgian documents replace the pre-war treaty in which Germany guaranteed the Belgian frontier, a treaty broken when German troops marched into Belgium in 1914.

It was understood the German action is voluntary, and involves no compensatory measures by Belgium.

Japs Try to Buy Sino War Films

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—Efforts of Japanese interests here to purchase and suppress certain sections of American newsreel films made in war-torn China were disclosed today.

A film trade publication stated that Siegfried Lindstrom, a former film agent in the Orient, now employed in the New York office of the Bureau of Insular Affairs under jurisdiction of the War Department, had approached several newsreel companies here in an unsuccessful endeavour to obtain sections of a newly arrived newsreel depicting bombing raids in China.

Britain Defers Drastic Action Against Italy

Cabinet Hands Back Spain Issue to Committee

LONDON, Oct. 13 (INS)—Drastic action against Italy for her continued refusal to withdraw Italian volunteers from Spain was deferred by the British cabinet today at a two and one-half hour meeting.

Bowing to Premier Mussolini for the present at least, the cabinet decided to hand the volunteer issue back to the chairman's sub-committee of the international non-intervention committee.

A brief time limit was imposed, however, and if no settlement is reached, Britain will support France's demand for opening of her Pyrenees frontier to permit passage of men and munitions to the Spanish loyalists.

The proposal for Anglo-French occupation of Minorca in the Balearic Islands was rejected.

The cabinet agreed that the question of the security of British communications in the Mediterranean has now become of greater interest than that of volunteers, or, so far as Britian is concerned, who wins the Spanish war.

Rather than occupation of Minorca, the British went on record in favor of internationalization of the Balearics pending outcome of the Spanish conflict.

If Italy, or Spanish insurgent leader, Generalissimo Francisco Franco refuse to agree, the British then will consider the possibility of an Anglo-French "patrol" off Minorca, with orders to all warship commanders to "resist invasion."

However, this question was left open to further discussion with the view prevailing that the realization that Britain and France will not tolerate Italian occupation may be sufficient in itself to restrain Mussolini.

New Recruits Not For Spain, Says Rome

ROME, Oct. 13 (AP)—Fascist officials denied today that any of the 50,000 volunteers reported called in a new Blackshirt recruiting program were destined for Spanish service.

Italy, they said, is plugging all military holes in a determination to remain strong, in view of the general European situation. But, they said, there is no specific point dictating this action.

The call caused speculation among Italians as to where the men would see service. Usually well-informed persons said part of them would be sent to Africa and others would remain in Italy.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

We have just received a copy of a complete new edition of Emily Post's "Etiquette," which weighs only slightly less than a Thanksgiving turkey. And we are greatly astonished, and somewhat chagrined, at the number of things we have been doing the wrong way for many years.

Damon Runyon

Of course, we always knew we were a little out of line on our table manners, with specific reference to the handling of the various implements deemed necessary to the polite cargoing of food. A scar over our left eye is a reminder of an old habit of leaving the spoon in the coffee cup.

We knew that you are not supposed to use a knife to convey peas to the mouth, without first mixing them with mashed potatoes, but those different forks at company dinners always had us greatly confused. That is why we have come to prefer dining with the lads along Broadway, where eating is a matter of go-as-you-please, with no holds barred.

KICKS AS WARNINGS

We got good and tired of taking kicks on the ankles from the lady of the house as warnings that we were using the spear intended for the meat on our salad, or dunking at the wrong time. We do not see the use of all those rules, especially the one about not conversing with your mouth full.

This prevents you from winning many an argument. Because by the time you get your mouth emptied the other fellow may have craftily changed the subject. Moreover, all thinking persons must admit that talking and eating simultaneously is a great time-saver.

However, realizing our own weaknesses in table etiquette because they are so frequently brought to our attention, we found no surprises in Emily Post's observations on that particular subject.

It was when we took to reading through a chapter on conversation that we were practically shocked. We quote you Emily Post on "personal remarks":

> "Although personal remarks are always in bad form, it is proper and always pleasant to say something appreciative about something one has done: 'That was a splendid speech,' 'You gave us such a delicious dinner,' 'I've never seen such beautiful flowers,' 'You always know how to make a room inviting,' etc. But it is bad taste to say, 'What a lovely nose you have and what an enchanting mouth'."

We only hope that this last dictum represents a new style that has come to Emily Post's world, and did not always generally obtain. Otherwise, we have been in horribly bad taste in bygone times. And we fear that many of our fellow citizens are going along in horribly bad taste right now.

BANS "PIPPIN" REMARKS

We always thought, until we read Emily Post, that it was quite all right to lean over to a fair neighbor at a dinner, or anywhere else, for that matter. And, by way of making conversation, remark:

> "Honey, did anybody ever tell you that you are a pippin?"

Just by way of making conversation, understand. We always felt that it was a much nicer way of starting up talk than by saying something about the weather. We have seldom seen a fair neighbor who seemed at all interested in the weather.

And we must further report that we have seldom seen a fair neighbor who did not respond somewhat amiably to the above crack. The answer may be "no," meaning that nobody has ever told her she is a pippin, and that gives you a line on her veracity.

If she is a pippin, you can go and bet all the bombs in China that somebody has told her. If she is a crow it makes no difference. You would not have made the crack to begin with.

Anyway, when she says no, nobody has ever told her she is a pippin, that is where you say, "Well, I'm tell you." And then et cetera, et cetera, et cetera, and so on, and so forth. Or the answer may be "Oh, You go on, now," and that leads to the same et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

French Cabinet Meets in Crisis

PARIS, Oct. 13 (INS)—Premier Camille Chautemps suddenly called an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet this afternoon—the second of this critical week.

Indicating that some major move might be forthcoming, the Premier also ordered the heads of the army, navy and air force to be present.

Grave decisions regarding Spain and foreign intervention there are being considered by the Cabinet, it was understood.

Immediate reopening of the Pyrenees frontier to permit sympathizers aid the Spanish loyalists is believed the most likely outcome, although no formal announcement is looked for before a third Cabinet meeting tomorrow.

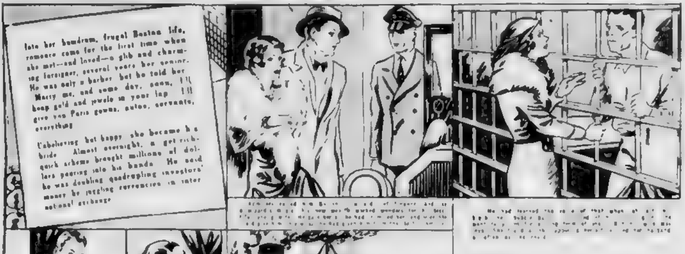
THE "WIZARD'S" BRIDE
Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 9



Into her humdrum, frugal Boston life, romance came for the first time when she met—and loved—a glib and charming foreigner, several years her senior. He was only a barber but he told her "Marry me, and some day, soon, I'll heap gold and jewels in your lap. I'll give you Paris gowns, autos, servants, everything."

Unbelieving but happy she became his bride. Almost overnight, a get-rich-quick scheme brought millions of dollars pouring into his hands. He said he was doubling, quadrupling investors' money by juggling currencies in international exchange.

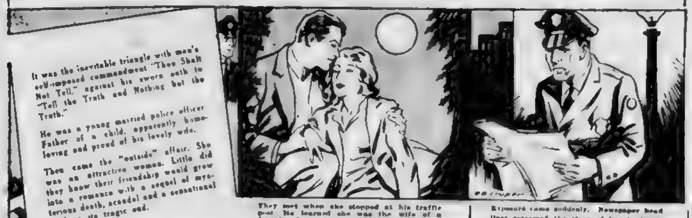
NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH
Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 7



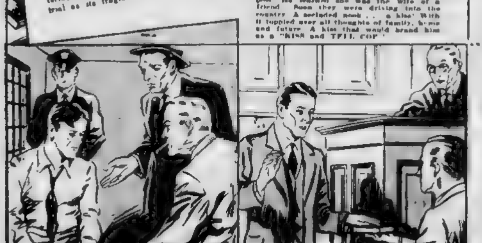
It was the inevitable triangle with man's self-imposed commandment "Thou Shalt Not Tell," against his sworn oath to "Tell the Truth and Nothing but the Truth."

He was a young married police officer. Father of a child, apparently home-loving and proud of his lovely wife.

Then came the "outside" affair. She was an attractive woman. Little did they know their friendship would grow into a romance with a sequel of mysterious death, scandal and a sensational trial as its tragic end.

They met when she stopped at his traffic post. He learned she was the wife of a friend. Soon they were driving into the country. A secluded nook . . . a kiss! With it toppled over all thoughts of family, home and future. A kiss that would brand him as a "KISS and TELL COP."

Exposure came suddenly. Newspaper headlines screamed the story of her husband's death, of police investigation and her arrest charged with the poisoning of her husband, a charge of which she was later cleared.



The police turned to him. Was he the motive, they demanded in merciless grilling. What was his part in this affair. To clear himself he must testify.

Could he risk being involved. Could he tell of his affair and expose himself to ridicule. He faced the crowded courtroom and with upraised hand, swore to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

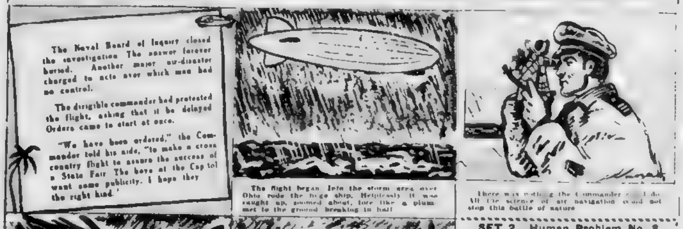
THE LAST COMMAND
Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 8



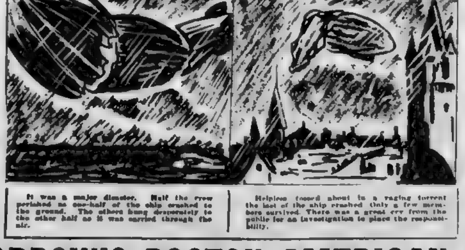
The Naval Board of Inquiry closed the investigation. The answer forever buried. Another major air-disaster charged to acts over which man had no control.

The dirigible commander had protested the flight, asking that it be delayed. Orders came to start at once.

"We have been ordered," the Commander told his aide, "to make a cross country flight to assure the success of a State Fair. The boys at the Cap tol want some publicity. I hope they the right kind."

The flight began. Into the storm area over Ohio rode the huge ship. Helplessly it was caught up, zoomed about, tore like a plummet to the ground breaking in half.

There was nothing the Commander could do. All the science of air navigation could not stop this battle of nature.



It was a major disaster. Half the crew perished as one-half of the ship crashed to the ground. The others hung desperately to the other half as it was carried through the air.

Helpless tossed about in a raging torrent the last of the ship crashed. Only a few members survived. There was a great cry from the public for an investigation to place the responsibility.

Law Closes Down 'Bonanza' Offices And Takes Over Company's Books

Money-Bags Shut by Stern Police

Lured by the get-rich-quick scheme of $640 for $5.95, crowds of men and women, and employes of the closed Discount Group headquarters in Devonshire street, are shown being barred from admission to the offices by a detail of police ordered there by Commissioner Timilty. Police on foot and mounted were on hand. Many of the customers told police they were ready to receive their first rewards in the new scheme. Others held currency in their hands ready to make their first deposit should the offices open.

Boston Evening A[illegible]

Girls in Crowd Beg in Vain to Invest Cash

"Winners" Lose as Police Block Way To Money

[illegible] bonanza get-rich-quick scheme struck an impasse today while a cordon of police stood guard over the barricaded offices of the Boston Discount Group in Devonshire street.

Hundreds of prospective customers jostled outside and argued with police. Many said they were due for a payoff on their investment of 24 hours ago. Others clutched currency in their hands ready to deposit [illegible] when the doors are reopened.

More than a score of girl clerks, stenographers, bookkeepers and [illegible] for the newly organized company stood around [illegible] dependent [illegible] they were not allowed to enter the offices.

ORDERS FOR ARREST

As early as 7 a.m. [illegible] the doors [illegible] the organization. Their faces fell when Sergeant [illegible] O'Brien, in charge of the police detail, informed them the offices were temporarily closed.

Sergeant O'Brien had orders to arrest any officer of the firm who attempted to open the offices for business. None of the officers of the firm showed up.

Police have already seized the books and ledgers of the company [illegible].

Despite the action of police at the [illegible] of District Attorney Foley, nothing illegal has been discovered as to the operations of the promoters.

WARRANT IS REFUSED

The courts have refused to issue [illegible] against them [illegible] federal government has discovered no basis for action as the company is not using the mails.

At [illegible] a.m. Sergeant Joseph Con[illegible] [illegible] with two patrolmen [illegible] offices after [illegible] O'Brien's detail arrived.

An employe who gave his name as Smith was the first to appear. When he saw the police cordon he announced he would notify the operators of the organization at [illegible].

ALMOST IN GRASP

Edward Hoffman of Elizabeth street, Mattapan, was the most disheartened man in the milling crowd outside. He said he had been told his name had reached the top of the list and he would be paid off today. He is still awaiting developments.

John S. Rogers, former advertising man and head of the Discount Group, and Martin Saxton, his assistant, estimated yesterday that more than 5000 persons had joined the organization since its inception on Monday. Of that number Rogers announced 200 had received their first dividends.

Kenneth B. Backman, manager of the Boston Better Business Bureau, planned to confer with Assistant Attorney General James J. Ronan today and present Ronan with a decision of the United States Supreme Court ruling an allegedly similar scheme a lottery and thereby illegal.

RECALLS PONZI'S DAY

On Monday after announcing they had tested the legality of the corporation's set-up, Rogers threw the doors of the one-time Federal National Bank building open for business.

The response from the public was reminiscent of the golden-era of Charlie Ponzi. Within an hour of opening the offices were jammed to overflowing. Women comprised the greater number of investors.

Before noon the streets were lined with eager prospective investors and more police were ordered to the scene to untangle traffic.

RUSH FOR RICHES

The banking district practically ceased operations as employes and officers of nearby firms stood outside trying to find out the mathematical intricacies of the firm.

By nightfall that day more than 2500 persons had filed through the doors of the organization and passed their $5.95 each across the counter as their original investment that the company promised would bring them $640 each in return.

At the end of the day officers who had been stationed outside and near the doors to handle the excited throngs were paid off by company officials.

District Attorney Foley stepped into the picture yesterday, and with Commissioner Timilty decided that until the legality of the organization's business could be tested the offices should be closed to "protect the public."

John S. Rogers, who heads the new "get-rich-quick" scheme, evidently does not like the flash of a camera bulb. Photo shows him apparently attempting to avoid the lens of a camera leveled on him for a photograph. His relish for reporters who ask pertinent questions does not appear to be very great, either.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

Through the kindness of Miss Babette Feist, who plays the part of the Duchess of Kent, the young queen's "poor mama," in "Victoria Regina," I have just had the pleasure of reading the whole collection of plays by Laurence Houseman, from which Mr. Gilbert Miller selected those which we are now seeing in Boston.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The book is published by Scribner's from several of Mr. Houseman's earlier books, including "Angels and Ministers," "Palace Plays," "Queen's [illegible]" and "Victoria and Albert." One hitherto unpublished play is included, "Aims and Objects," which is about Prince Albert's plans for the education of the disappointing Albert Edward, Prince of Wales.

Volume Autographed By Houseman, Cast

In a previous column I had happened to mention that I had not yet read all the plays. Hence Miss Feist's kind gesture of lending me her volume, autographed by Mr. Houseman and by most of the members of the original cast. It made very pleasurable reading.

Although I have no quarrel with the present selection of plays which go to make up "Victoria Regina" as it stands, I am confirmed in my feeling that many other Houseman sketches might have done as well. There are the early scenes, for instance, in which the Duchess of Kent grooms the young girl to be a queen, with Bible readings and genealogy charts, and the even more poignant one in which Victoria takes things into her own hands, dismisses one of "poor mama's" ladies in waiting and, as well, Dr. Conway, who in the gay slang of the time was mama's cicisbeo, about the meaning of which we had better not go too deeply.

Possible to Build Play About Albert

It would even be possible to build a very solid play about Prince Albert rather than the queen. Such scenes—and there are several of them—show the progress of the prince from a handsome young man whom Vicky hardly trusted to be anything but a husband, to the worn baldish man on whom the queen leaned heavily not only in managing her household but in ironing out her policy and her relations with her cabinet.

In addition to those scenes already so charmingly done, the shaving scene, for instance, and "The Good Lesson" and "The Rose and the Thorn," not to forget the moving moment when Prince Albert, already sickening for his death, staves off war with America, I should like to see "Leading Strings," the one where the prince locks the door against his too-dictatorial wife and the shrewdly written one where queen and prince, using Lord John Russell as a go-between succeed in ousting the self-willed Palmerston (whom they call in private, "Pilgerstein").

The death scene, and that in which Mrs. Gladstone tries to comfort the bereaved queen, are also indicated. They make a good historical sequence and are, besides, pretty entertaining.

Mr. Houseman in his preface has this to say about the many short plays which go to make up "Victoria Regina."

> "Since the theater is denied them (that is the Lord Chamberlain's veto, of course), I have in the writing of these plays constructed the dialogue rather more on literary than on theatrical lines.

Material Is Drawn From Side Incidents

> "I have also, for the most part, drawn my material from side-incidents, which have as yet not found their way into history. But it will be well for readers not to assume too hastily that certain things which seem rather unlikely did not actually occur. "Morning Glory" (the shaving scene) was a true incident and took place on the date named.
>
> "The question of Jonah and the whale did really arise to cause spiritual disturbance to the queen's mind.
>
> "The mahdi's head was made into an inkpot and probably remains one to this day, since Lord Kitchener's skillful marshalling of the facts induced her majesty to condone the outrage. Whether first-hand proof of these things any longer exists has become doubtful. The Society for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments has not, unfortunately, been granted the custody of Queen Victoria's diaries."

This book goes to show a well-written dramatic scene may act perfectly well, even if not intended for the stage. Many of the other thirty, I am sure, would act quite as well as the ten which make up the present superb performance. Incidentally, they help greatly to make Victoria and Albert come alive in the amateur historian's mind.

Blond Bandit, Pal Hunted

A handsome blond bandit and his companion, who staged two robberies in Wakefield and Framingham and fled before a volley of tonic bottles at Hamilton, were objects of a state-wide police hunt today.

Miss Betty Mahr of Framingham was menaced and Charles Smith, 23, attendant at a filling station on Union avenue there, was robbed of $50.

Another filling station attendant, Paul Garacoglia, on Elm street, Wakefield, was robbed of $20.

Before a rain of tonic bottles, in the face of a gun pointed at him by the blond bandit, John Horne, operator of a filling station on Essex street, Hamilton, routed the gunmen as they attempted to hold up his station.

Registration numbers on the bandit car showed it to be one stolen from Daniel Kaufman of Flint street, Lynn.

Keeps Women 'In Their Place'

Priest Stops Move to Make 'Leaders' of 100

Salem, Oct. 13—The Rt. Rev. Mgr. J. Alfred La Liberte of Central Falls, R. I., is not opposed to women but he wants them in their places.

Speaking to 300 men delegates at the 14th Congress of the Union St. John Baptiste of America, Monsignor La Liberte opposed a constitutional amendment which would have given 100 women the right to become delegates.

"Women have absolutely no place in positions of leadership," he declared. "I respect women as much as anybody here but the men in this audience who are urging that women be given the right to direct because they assist in the work have become blinded by an error of logic."

The proposal, under the priest's strong oratorical prodding, was defeated.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Eleanor Hudson

Guest writer of the Girl About Town column today is Eleanor Hudson, well-known as a collector, writer and lecturer about antiques. Miss Hudson is actively identified with organizations representing diversified interests.

"JUNK!" caustically remark some persons.

"TREASURES!" proudly boast others. It is merely a point of view, I believe, and I have profound understanding for both sides. Deep appreciation usually is not acquired overnight. Like Helen Hayes, versatile actress, who was guest writer of this column recently, I, too, ad[illegible] antiques.

ELEANOR HUDSON

[illegible] sympathize too with guests who must perch precariously on wobbly chairs . . . a century or two old . . . lest they collapse. Re-glued, these chairs might be stronger and last longer than expensive modern counterparts.

What attracts [illegible] abundantly [illegible] friends to our dainty heirlooms on which [illegible] endeavor to squeeze [illegible] child's chair?

I have understanding [illegible] persons who today [illegible] viding they select with [illegible] which they firmly [illegible] or more and of [illegible] truly proud.

Cost Need Not Be High If Judgment Is Used

Antiques, I believe, are a [illegible] for young married couples. [illegible] of pleasing lines [illegible] is inexpensive and [illegible] finished at little cost [illegible] public libraries have books [illegible].

The beginner with a limited number [illegible] but much perseverance and common sense may take apart his furniture, reassemble and glue it. Refinished, it becomes a valued possession.

Paints [illegible] make a restoration. Often a valuable [illegible] is defaced or ruined by inadequate [illegible] knowledge.

Collectors with scant experience [illegible] purchase mahogany-veneered [illegible] late Empire style. Clumsy [illegible] their veneer they are difficult [illegible] professional to restore and [illegible].

If you have never attended an auction, perhaps you have missed a splendid entertainment. There are people who follow the auctions as a dog follows a bone. I have friends who travel two hundred miles or more to attend an auction, returning home delighted with a single purchase of peachblow or a bit of tapestry.

Knitting and Chatter Mixed With Bidding

Women not particularly interested in antiques, rarely bidding, often come laden with huge knitting bags and their lunch, prepared for an all-day holiday. They are regular attendants at the auctions. As they knit they chatter, exchanging an amusing remark now and then as a forlorn antique is exhibited by the perspiring auctioneer. Girls giggle, as the auctioneer, commenting warmly on the object's qualities, may exclaim: "I don't know what it is, but it is a mighty handy article to have about the house. In fact, no home can be complete without it."

Dealers in the rear of the hall have a language all their own. The auctioneer keenly watches their high-signs.

Auctions are schools of experience. Novices may admire recently refinished furniture while experienced collectors or dealers may praise the pieces "in the rough." By means of a glass, they scrutinize certain revealing characteristics, examining worm holes or ink stains, some faked.

Signs That Tell Wise Real From Fraudulent

Drawers are removed from desks and other furniture as the connoisseur cautiously inspects tell-tale features. Brasses and cabinets (on desks or secretaries) are included in the examination. The authenticity of a piece may be placed in doubt by a coat of paint. If the piece is genuine, the bidding may be spirited and knitting and chatting ceases as the knock-down price climbs.

A cluttered second-hand store or an exclusive antiques shop may prove equally profitable to the person who loves to browse around.

Several of my friends, with wide experience and nationally-known for their knowledge of antiques, are most modest. They never laugh at the mistakes of an enthusiastic beginner. Undoubtedly they once made the same mistakes.

Collecting antiques smacks of gambling, in that one must always be willing to take a chance!

De Valera Picks 'Mystery Man' For Eire

President Won't Be Candidate to Head New State

DUBLIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—Enigmatic President Eamon De Valera indicated today he was grooming a "mystery man" to run for president of the new state of Eire, to be set up under the constitution adopted by the Irish Free State last July.

The New York born president who disclaims any attempt to assume dictatorial powers through the constitution apparently will not offer himself as a candidate for the presidency of the new state. This construction was placed on a speech he delivered at a Fianna Fail party conference last night.

KNOWS OF MAN

"We want a man who will be an honor to the country. I know of such a man," De Valera said.

His cryptic statement left the public and politicians speculating on the identity of the dark horse candidate since it was believed De Valera would be content to guide the country as premier.

The new constitution, approved by a plebiscite in the July elections, becomes operative in December. The procedure has yet to be worked out for electing the president, who will be a sort of ceremonial head of the state and hold many powers similar to that of the former governor general.

Should De Valera not run it would not mean he was leaving active politics as he would remain at the helm of the Free State as premier.

NEW CONSTITUTION

The new constitution declared all Ireland a "sovereign, independent, democratic state" and was designed to require no alteration in event that Northern Ireland some day should join the Irish Free State. It modified the Free State's form of government and provided for election of a president by direct vote.

In his speech to the Fianna Fail, which is the government party, De Valera urged the Free State to work for union with Northern Ireland.

Fiance and Boy See Girl Slain By Stranger

Death Bullets Answer Offers of Aid on Indiana Road

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 13 (INS)—Northern Indiana police today were on the lookout for a mysterious stranger named as the gun slayer of a 16 year-old Granger, Ind., high school girl.

The victim was Melba Moore, fatally wounded as she sat in an automobile between her fiance Adolph Stopper, 20, of Michawaka, Ind., and Charles Walton, 16, of Granger.

Stopper said he was driving Melba and Charles back home when they passed a car half in the ditch beside the highway.

"I drove past him and stopped," Stopper said, "in the belief he might be in trouble. I backed up a little and called out. The man in the car started swearing and fired four or five shots. I started away as fast as possible and he fired again.

"I heard Melba groan and I saw she was shot. We raced on to Granger and got her father. We took her to the hospital, but she was dead."

Failing Health Causes Suicide

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 13—Shipman B. Wilcox, 42, who was found dead in his home here yesterday, committed suicide, Medical Examiner H. R. DeLuca announced today.

DeLuca said the dead man, who had been manager of a Western Union office until he resigned two weeks ago, left several notes in which he said he had been despondent and in ill health. A .32 calibre pistol was found near his body.

'Big City' Is Held Over Week at Orpheum

Smashing all box office and attendance records, "Big City," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's exciting drama co-starring Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy, will be held over for a second week at both Loews State and Orpheum theaters. On the same program is another M-G-M feature, entitled "The Women Men Marry."

Produced and directed by Frank Borzage, "Big City" presents a cross-section of American metropolitan life with Tracy as a New York city taxicab driver who becomes involved in a war between rival taxicab companies and Miss Rainer as his immigrant wife, whom he barely saves from deportation.

Included in the supporting cast are Charles Butterworth, Janet Beecher, Eddie Quillan, Victor Varconi, Helen Troy, Guinn Williams and Regis Toomey.

Also of interest is the appearance in a [illegible] free-for-all sequence of the story of [illegible] noted names of the sports world as Jack Dempsey, James J. Jeffries, Jimmy McLarnin, Maxie Rosenbloom, Jim Thorpe, Frank Wykoff, Jackie Fields, Man Mountain Dean, Bull Montana and other athletes.

"The Women Men Marry" features George Murphy and Josephine Hutchinson, and is an interesting and extremely unusual story of how a star reporter tracks down a cult of fake mystics. Included in the supporting cast are Claire Dodd, Cliff Edwards and Sidney Blackmer.

Ninety per cent of the Paramount producers have had a try at the life of Victor Herbert, which has now become an heirloom at that studio. Writer Howard Estabrook, associated with Frank Lloyd in many of his successes, is the next to qualify. Howard has been elevated to the rank of producer and the Herbert story is one of three assigned to him. He is completely re-writing it as a woman's vehicle, hoping that Irene Dunne will be interested.

Fine Filling With Honey Butter

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

DO YOU remember when you curled in a great armchair before the open fireplace enthralled by stories of the fairy princesses?

These beautiful storybook fairies existed on a romantic food nectar from the flowers. Remember?

Those of you who like honey on biscuits [illegible] pancakes will be interested to know that the bureau of agricultural economics predicts that all the good honey this year will be out of the hands of the beekeepers by Thanksgiving.

IN PURCHASING honey it is well to know that the [illegible]

As a rule the lightest colored honeys are the milder ones and the darker ones have a stronger flavor. But this does not indicate that either the light or the dark honey is of superior quality.

HONEY should be kept in a tightly sealed container in a dry place at ordinary room temperature.

There are numerous uses for honey—in cakes, [illegible] cookies. Nearly everyone likes it as a spread for bread [illegible] griddle cakes and waffles. Many persons choose it as a sweet[illegible] fruits, beverages and [illegible]. It combines well with peanut butter or cottage cheese or chopped dried fruits to make sandwich fillings.

Many of you [illegible] of honey in baked foods. But remember that cakes and quick breads made with honey need to be baked at a moderate temperature. This [illegible] even temperature is necessary to avoid too rapid browning [illegible]. Also a very [illegible] the aroma [illegible] the honey which gives [illegible] distinctive flavor.

HONEY WHITE CAKE

- ⅓ cup butter
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ⅓ cup honey
- 3 egg whites
- 2 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅔ cup milk

Cream the butter [illegible], add the finely granulated sugar stirring gradually until the mixture [illegible] the honey with the milk. Add the mixture alternately with the sifted dry ingredients. [illegible] the dry ingredients stir in the milk. Last of all fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour into a lightly greased pan and bake. Bake in a very moderate oven (325 degrees F.).

HONEY BUTTER

- 2 ⅓ cups honey
- 2-3 cup butter

Let butter stand at room temperature until soft enough to blend well with [illegible]. Stir until thoroughly mixed. Put the mixture in a quart jar [illegible] tight. [illegible] in [illegible] refrigerator. This is excellent for [illegible] steamed puddings as a hard sauce.

HONEY BUTTER ICING

- ¼ cup honey butter
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 4 tablespoons cream

Soften honey butter with cream. Add powdered sugar and stir until smooth. This recipe is sufficient for two nine-inch layers.

This honey cake will be a real treat for lovers of honey.

Disguise Grey Hair

BECAUSE it tones underneath hair as well as those giving-away top streaks of grey, a new chrome-covered lipstick is destined to be the standby of thousands. Anne Carr shows how it is used. Simple!

By ARLINE GOULD

WE CAN'T think of many things that can as rapidly plunge a girl into the depths as the sight of her first grey hair!

It seems to [illegible] bubbling youngness of yesterday into something dull and drear . . . and it is a [illegible], when a [illegible] chromium-covered stick [illegible] the lines in a [illegible] of sec[onds].

If you've been letting streaks of silver stay undisturbed because it was quite unthinkable to do an all-over dye job, or because rinses wouldn't be just the thing for you—go shopping this instant for a new hair crayon that's arrived today on the cosmetic market!

[illegible]

* * *

[illegible] What more could anyone ask of science and a [illegible]?

We have never seen anything like the device used for spreading the crayon thoroughly—it tones the underneath hair as well as the top hair. This is accomplished through a tiny brush actually embedded in the crayon.

You'd be elated at the life this crayon puts even into faded hair with [illegible] trace of grey but drab nevertheless!

We were amazed particularly at the range of shades available [illegible] even the platinum blonde touch up is to be had.

It's to be had in other shades which are usually so difficult to match up—light brown, chestnut, auburn and dark brown as well as black.

Don't bother trying to acquire nonchalance about drab or silver-streaked hair—it isn't worth the emotional strangulation that goes with it. Use the crayon and forget the whole thing immediately, except for pride in a grand looking coiffure!

For information on the new hair crayon with clever brush embedded and an amazing range of shades phone Arline Gould [illegible] week-days [illegible] or write her at the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bridge

A Defensive Crossruff

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

In today's hand South's bidding clearly showed a 6-4 distribution in hearts and clubs.

When, as declarer, he made a slip, East and West were able to profit from this knowledge.

South, dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened his singleton spade, dummy played the King and East groaned when his Ace was trumped by declarer. At the second trick, South took his Ace of clubs, next ruffing a low club in dummy. Hoping to ruff out the entire club suit, South attempted to find enough entries to his hand by finessing the Jack of diamonds. West won with his King and returned a diamond.

South's heart rebid followed by the showing of the club suit, had indicated a 6-4 holding in the two suits. The spade ruff on the opening lead proved that South's remaining cards were three diamonds. It was easy for West to discover, therefore, that his partner had started with a doubleton diamond. Hence his diamond return.

At this point declarer should have seen that he could make his contract even if the opponents made two trump tricks. He could not afford, however, to let them make three trump tricks. He could have made the hand easily by cashing the Ace of trumps and ruffing a club. His last club could be discarded on one of the dummy's high spades.

Even if this were ruffed by West and the diamond return ruffed by East, South could still make his contract.

But South's greed for overtricks sealed his doom. He took West's diamond return with his Ace and ruffed a club. Now he led the Queen of spades, discarding his last club. West trumped with the ten-spot and returned a third round of diamonds. East ruffed and led another spade.

Regardless of South's play, West was bound to make his King of trumps for the setting trick.

Self-Made Girl

By Hazel Livingstone

CHAPTER 37

Linda was a whirlwind of energy, a demon for work as well as play.

Night after night, she came home in the small hours, only to have her breakfast sent up to her at quarter to 8, to bathe and dress, and be on her way to the office at quarter to 9.

No longer was she forgetful, unattentive, dreaming. She was, Mr. Bottinger was beginning to think, almost too business-like.

Because, he thought, she worked too hard, he had Mrs. Bottinger invite her sometimes to Sunday dinner in their old-fashioned comfortable house, wedged between two new, ultra-modern apartments, and then they all sat around, glowing with kindness, being nice to "papa's little secretary."

After all his kindness to her, Mr. Bottinger was shocked, absolutely unprepared, when Linda came to him one morning and told him that she wanted to leave.

He had known for months that the general manager envied him his capable young assistant.

"What did Mr. Beaming say to you?" he asked her sternly.

"He said that he wanted another secretary and he wanted to know if I'd like the opportunity. Then he said he'd speak to you about it and see if you were willing. But you've been so kind to me, I wanted to tell you first, myself."

A DIFFICULT MAN

Linda waited and he went on.

"It will be very unpleasant for you, my dear girl. Very unpleasant. This—this Mrs. Breen— You will find her most unpleasant. She neither needs help, nor desires it. I am afraid it will be —ah— most unpleasant for you."

"Nevertheless," Linda said, "it's a chance and I'm willing to take it. That is, if you're willing to let me."

The duel between herself and Mrs. Breen lasted [illegible] weeks. Nothing was said [illegible]

[illegible]

All this was highly amusing to Hester, but not so to [illegible] wanted to say, "I'm not what you think I am, really. I do my work! I earn my pay."

MORE WORK TO DO

[illegible] demanded [illegible] swamped her with letters [illegible] expected her to [illegible] they were finished. [illegible] he would work too [illegible] say, "That's that. Now let's eat."

He [illegible] her to none of the show places, the fashionable spots [illegible] which she had become a customer in the last few months. His preference was for the unpretentious little places where there's no music, no show, and food is an art.

None of it was lost on Hester. She saw all, heard all, and didn't hesitate to tell all.

"He's really quite high class," she told Linda, "though don't be deceived by the finesse—they're all alike. He'll get to the point any time now."

"I'm not so sure," Linda said. "I think we misjudged him."

Whereupon Hester laughed, and Linda felt foolish. But just the same, she DID think they'd misjudged him and Mrs. Breen, too.

There was another family crisis, and she'd have to send more money.

A NEW CRISIS

Claudine had had another baby, and it would be weeks before she could leave the hospital, and perhaps months before she could take charge of the house again.

"I wanted to write you about it before," Blanche wrote, "but you know how sensitive Claudine is, and she made me promise not to. Poor Claudine, she'd had so much trouble, and that crazy Junior took it into his head to object to another baby!

"Said it was humiliating to him, and that Claudine and Chester ought to have more sense at their age. Can you imagine! He said that he got enough razzing when baby Patsy Anne came.

"I thought Bella might keep the youngest ones, and then I wondered if you could pay for a housekeeper to take care of the house and the others until Claudine is on her feet again.

"I hate to ask you, when you do so much already, but what else can we do?"

TOGETHER ALWAYS

[illegible]

OUT IN THE OPEN

[illegible]

"Linda, I wish you'd move out of that woman's hotel where you live. The old girls are beginning to get in my hair. Get yourself an apartment. That's the only way to live."

"I did think of it, a while ago. I was going to go in with another girl. But I decided I couldn't afford it."

"Of course you can afford it," he said [illegible].

She turned on him blazing. "I tell you I can't! I guess I know what I can afford!"

"Then," he said, "I'll pay for it. I'm damned if I'll hang around this hall like a stage-door Johnny any more. I'm sick of it!"

White Lies Blacken Many Innocent Lives

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The modern tendency to ignore the truth and to substitute tales of one's own invention does more to make homes unhappy than anything I can imagine.

No human brain is big enough to conceive the damage that is caused in this country alone by persons who twist true facts to suit their malicious purposes. Certainly it would be impossible to even guess at the number of tears that are shed in a single week because of the falsehoods manufactured by these fiends hiding in human flesh.

Why people must lie is beyond me. Telling the truth is so easy, so natural that it is hard to see why anybody has to disrespect it. But people do disrespect it, and in the past 20 years I have received at least 50,000 letters that prove they do.

Here is a typical letter, which I hope the guilty party reads.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 18, and until lately was allowed to have my boy and girl friends come to the house a couple of times a week. Then one day my brother told mother he saw one of these boys kissing me, and now she won't allow anyone to come to the house.

My brother made up the story, as I have never been kissed in my life.

How can I ever have friends if I'm not allowed to bring them to the house?

My mother's excuse is that Dad is tired and wants to go to bed so he can get up early, and that our noise keeps him awake. We like to dance by the radio music, and of course boys and girls do a lot of laughing and talking.

It seems that when anyone comes up, Dad goes to bed early, and when no one is there, he will sit up until after ten-thirty.

B. J.

DEAR CHILD:

Why don't you have it out with the brother who told tales on you, especially since you say they're not true?

Tell him he isn't a very good sport, and that he should be man enough to tell your mother the truth.

Why not try persuading your mother to let you have in your friends on the night before your Dad's day off? Maybe she will consent.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

SHALL HE WRITE?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Several months ago I was introduced to a girl at the home of a friend of mine. She lives out of town, and I have grown to care a lot for her.

I wonder if she has forgotten about me.

Do you think it would be all right to write her a letter?

EDWARD.

DEAR EDWARD:

Yes, it would be all right if you wrote her a nice letter. Tell her you hope she hasn't forgotten you, and that you often look back with pleasure on the acquaintance and wish you could see her again.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Bag, Glove Twins

A SIEVE has nothing on the newest bag and glove set [illegible]—perhaps the simplest and smartest [illegible] Cut on refreshingly unbaroque lines—in a season when everything has a tendency to go [illegible] on us—and yet svelte and really elegant. There are pert [illegible] hand stitched gloves of fine black antelope, and a matching skirt-type bag luxuriously lined with slipper satin. These are the inspired designs of David Lewis, young American designer who's [illegible] head with bags that are perfectly timed for the gal who knows her way around!—Annice Brink.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

EXERCISES RAISE BUST CURVES

By IDA JEAN KAIN

BECAUSE curves are on the up and up, several hundred mannequins lost their jobs this year!

The mannequins in question were window dummies, of course, for the smart young women who model can remodel their figures. All it takes is exercise.

As long ago as last spring New York models foresaw a new trend in figures, with a curved, high bustline and slender waist. Accordingly, they spent their spare time in exercise to develop their pectoral muscles. The perfect model of today has the figure of an outdoor girl, reflecting radiant health.

Figures are constantly changing, and this time for the better. A few years ago fashion decreed the flat-chested figure, which was achieved in many cases by wearing a binding brassiere. From the standpoint of health and the normal figure this was the worst thing one could do, for continued binding of the breasts breaks down the tissues and results in a sagging bust line. In spite of medical warnings, however, the flat-chested vogue lasted for several years.

* * *

As a consequence of an unprecedented enthusiasm for sports and exercise, the feminine figure has again changed. The fashionable bust has the firm, high contour of superb health, and the uplift brassiere is designed for the healthier figure.

Exercise effects a remarkable improvement in bust contour. The breasts have no muscles, but position and contour are largely influenced by the supporting pectoral muscles. Weight, of course, is also an important factor, since deposits of fat in this area contribute to the size of the bust and may lower its position. Likewise, where there is insufficient fatty tissue, as with extreme underweight, the bust is undeveloped. Generally speaking, the contour of the bust is improved by bringing the weight up or down to normal and through the practice of specific exercise.

One of the simplest exercises and one which is in favor with the models is to bend the elbows and bring the fingers of the hands together, just in front of the bust. Press the fingers together strongly, to bring the chest and arm muscles into vigorous action. Relax and repeat several times.

* * *

Another effective normalizing exercise is to clasp the hands back of the head and exerting force with first one arm and then the other, pull the clasped hands from one ear to the other. You should feel the pull through the shoulder girdle. Remember to keep your chin up.

Here is an exercise for which you will need an assistant, but which develops a lovely bust line.

Sit on the floor facing your partner with the soles of your feet resting against hers, each holding one end of a strong strap or rope about eighteen inches in length. Pull! This mild variation of the tug-of-war develops lovely contours of the chest, bust and arms.

Begin with a few minutes of exercise and gradually increase the exertion and time. Supplement the exercises given today with others from either the "Bust Developing" or the "Bust Reducing" leaflets. Send for one of these leaflets, enclosing a stamped return envelope and addressing your requests to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this paper.

Lose Bad Breath— Keep Your Friends

In spite of all that has been written about bad breath, thousands still lose friends through this unpleasant fault. Yet sour stomach with its resultant bad breath is frequently only the result of constipation. Just as it can also cause loss of appetite, early weakness, nervousness, mental dullness.

So keep regular. And if you need to assist Nature, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This gentle laxative can help bring relief. Extremely important, too, is the mild stimulation it gives the flow of bile from the liver, without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs. That's why millions are sold yearly. Invitations Sent for Meeting Of Exclusive Chilton Club

By BETTY ALDEN

THOUGH INVITATIONS for the annual meeting and tea have been sent out to all the members of the exclusive Chilton Club, the board of governors has set the date of the meeting as far ahead as Thursday, November 18th . . . which gives all members who are traveling or remaining at their country estates until after the hunting season, plenty of time to make definite plans to attend . . .

Mrs. Frederick R. Moseley, Jr.

Since the Chilton Club is Boston's most exclusive organization for women, the invitations to the meeting and tea, which were sent out by Mrs. William Adams Copeland, found their way only into the most high-brow of society mail boxes . .

Such aristocratic women as Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Roger Warner, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. Samuel Hoar and Mrs. James Jackson are just a few of the charter members who were mere girls at the housewarming party twenty-six years ago and have seldom missed a meeting since . . . GOOD MANNERS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I would like some information on the following:

1—Who takes care of the rings in the double ring ceremony (the bride's and the groom's)?

2—What kind of baskets do flower girls carry?

3—For an informal wedding, where the bride wishes to write the invitations to the reception, what kind of letter paper should be used?

1. The best man takes care of both rings, the bride's and the groom's, in the double ring ceremony.

2. If the flower girls carry baskets, the baskets are usually small in the container-part with a rather long loop handle. But today when long, picturesque frocks are so often chosen for flower girls, they do not so often carry baskets.

Easier and more appropriate for them to carry are old fashioned bouquets, nosegays fashioned of rows of tightly packed small flowers of pastel shades circled about a [illegible]

3. These [illegible] should be written on plain white letter paper [illegible] of rather heavy texture [illegible] important [illegible] news.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

War on Extra Pounds

HOW much would you like to lose? Five pounds? Ten pounds? Twenty? Even more?

You can easily vanquish the fat that disguises the buoyant, slim self that is really you. You can control your weight to a half-pound by switching to low-calory food.

No hungry pangs. If you keep to 1200 calories a day you lose as much as 2 pounds a week. But on that calory count you get 3 square meals a day and the vitamins you need for [illegible] good looks.

To really lose, though, you must [illegible] for the duration of the war [illegible] a hot dog or bag of peanuts at the football game [illegible] hot dog with [illegible] plus a medium bag of shelled peanuts is 632 calories. [illegible] instead an apple and a bag of popcorn [illegible]

Do you love waffles for Sunday morning breakfast? [illegible] buttered waffle [illegible]

[illegible] and cheese, 1 cup cole slaw, mineral oil dressing, 2 slices Melba toast, 1 glass skim milk, 1 medium bunch Concord grapes. It's only 378 calories.

Our [illegible] booklet, "Change Your Weight For Beauty's Sake," gives two weeks of low-calory menus, a calory chart, exercises, health hints to make you slim.

Send 15c for our booklet, Change Your Weight For Beauty's Sake, to Boston Evening American Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Gov. Hurley to Speak on Navy Day

A company of Marine Corps Reserves from the Squantum base and a detachment of Naval Reserves from Charlestown Navy Yard will participate in a drill as a feature of the celebration of Navy Day on Boston Common October 27.

James Roosevelt, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, will be the principal speaker.

The program is under the auspices of the Navy Post 297 American Legion, and the South Shore Branch 66, Fleet Reserve Association, The Kearsarge Naval Veterans Association of which Mayor Mansfield is a member is also co-operating.

At the Common mass meeting Governor Hurley and Mayor Mansfield will speak.

The Charlestown Navy Yard will be open to the public from 10 a. m. until 4 30 p. m.

One of the big features of the celebration will be a naval ball at the Copley Plaza.

AUSTEN LAKE

Harvard at Navy:

Football Vox Pops:

Georgia Goes to Town

IT IS MY BELIEF THAT HARVARD'S resurrectionists will be up and at the Navy in their football game at Baltimore next Saturday. But I am one who thought that Notre Dame would blister Illinois last week and picked Cornell to lose magnificently, but indubitably, to Colgate the week before that. So the best that can be said of my opinions is that they can be relied upon to poke up the indignation of the football bigots, who are the most bigoted bigots known to civilization.

AUSTEN LAKE

It is some fun, at that, to poke them up once a week for ten weeks every fall and hear them yell by mail, although I must complain that the honorary, or downtown alumni of Notre Dame, who used to hold the National outrage championship, are suffering a malignant case of tolerance this autumn. Most of the men who were writing football in the heyday of Knute Rockne will attest that self-appointed alumni, who had no standing on the ledgers of the school but followed the team in persona absentia or in the Sunday sport columns and finally mortified the good fathers in control by the fire of their devotion, had not equal for their postal fury.

Their zeal for the team, for "Rock" and for the [illegible] name of the old varsity, which never could no more than [illegible] [illegible] was more turbulent, vociferous and [illegible] than that of the true graduates with sheepskins in their [illegible]. And when they wrote fan letters to the football authors they warmed up with words which they could spell but which could not be found in any dictionary and went on from there to real gems of vituperation.

The Harvards Never Write

There are some energetic Vox Pops spread among the Princetons, the Pitts, the Columbias, and the Penns. The Yales are sometimes itchy too. But the Harvards, on their side, were always a hard-scrabble lot, who didn't give a cuss whether the papers mentioned their team or not or affected not to read it. Possibly they couldn't. At any rate an outraged letter from a Harvard, or even one of favorable comment, is something like the Jackpot in those coin gobbling machines of Florida. I never hit one. The Harvards simply regard such writings as non-essential and frivolous. But then the Harvards are not truly representative types of our football cosmos, for long ago they dispensed with pre-game pep meetings as a childish device and even in this year of ressurrection, they will let their team depart quietly for Baltimore with not so much as a "Hoo-rah-rah."

The Harvards have arrived at the conclusion that the night before a game is not the time to indulge in cheers, because obviously there is nothing to cheer about. Cheers are for victories won on meritorious effort and there will be time enough to acknowledge these things after they have occurred. If fortune is kind they will cheer next Sunday morning.

This year Dick Harlow seems to have poured a lot of learning over his boys. They have shown a smart improvement in their early games against such football innocents as Springfield and Brown. So the railroads running into Baltimore this week end report a scarcity of sleeper accomodations out of Boston, and it is suspected that a portion of the Harvard student body and local alumni are excursioning down to ascertain whether the boys are as cultured, gridironically speaking, as the [illegible] thinks they are.

H. C.-Georgia Has Boston Monopoly

THIS ALLOWS HOLY CROSS AND Georgia to monopolize Boston next Saturday in a game of great importance to the Atlantic seaboard, for Georgia is one of the hardshell varsities of the South, sometimes called the "Dixie Notre Dame" by reason of its pullman shuttlings around to meet the biggest, best and most renowned teams of the land. Holy Cross looms as not much less than one of the best.

One of the pet superstitions of this Georgia team, since losing to Tennessee last year, is the throwing of all college newspaper correspondents into the college swimming pool on the eve of a game, a practice that has worked so effectively that the team has not lost another game. This is more satisfying than writing fan letters beginning with words like "Anathema," or "Listen mugg" and concluding with the little noun ending in "ouse."

B. C. Gambles, and Fails

Boston College did its weekly stint on the Holiday by dividing a pair of goose eggs with Temple, due largely to its fourth quarter play-selection on the lip of the goalline when within shooting distance of a field goal. The B. C.'s decided to gamble for a touchdown, scorning the lesser score and, in doing so, wore out a pair of pants for Gil Dobie, who spent the interval squirming on the bench. Neither side shoved the other around much and the game was a standoff between the "utmost power" and "impenetrable defenses" of football's two old testament characters, Dobie and Pop Warner.

Eagles Booted Three Chances To Score on Temple Eleven

Might Have Won Had They Tried Field Goal

By WALTER KILEY

The score read, Boston College 0, Temple 0, but the scoreless deadlock came like a shock to the Eagles' legions.

They took the outcome as a defeat in virtue of their pre-game expectations.

Correspondingly it was a victory for the Owls of Pop Warner as the odds had been at [illegible] them. So they took the decision with fine glee and the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] the Eagles [illegible] by their shortcomings [illegible] they failed to impress with [illegible] power which was [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Eagles failed.

TACKLE PLAYS ONLY

As the game progressed it became [illegible] was to be one a [illegible] a defensive [illegible] from the [illegible] affairs of Boston [illegible] history during [illegible]

[illegible] that the Eagles [illegible] the deep [illegible] which they have [illegible] at University Heights.

Finding the wings impregnable [illegible] with Temple's two defensive backs playing wide to stop sweeps, the Eagles [illegible] and [illegible] attempted [illegible] to grind out yardage.

There is good excuse for the failure of Boston College to stage anything of offensive nature in the first period.

When Ira Jive san fumbled Quarterback Kosacevich [illegible] during the first minute [illegible] recovered for the Owls [illegible] at midfield. So instead of the Eagles being well into Temple territory the tables were reversed.

BLOCKING RAGGED

Two great punts by Kosacevich, the first of which went outside at the Eagles' two yard [illegible] the second of which was downed at the [illegible] same spot kept the Eagles in hot water.

And there was no out for them until Captain [illegible] broke out a [illegible] of fully 80 yards which lifted the pressure for the first time.

But from that moment on there was [illegible] excuse for the poor Boston [illegible]

Despite that first period disaster Boston College had three definite chances to win the ball game. At the start of the second period they had a first down on the 20 yard line. They lost the ball on downs on the 25.

In the third period they had a first down on the Temple 33 and lost the ball on downs on the 31.

Then comes that final period in which the unknown, and unheralded Andy Bismarck, the sparkplug, the Eagles swept 54 yards down-field, their one major attacking period.

WHY NOT FIELD GOAL?

Second guessing will be hot and heavy on their judgment here whether or not they should have gambled on winning the game, 3-0 instead of trying to pound out the touchdown.

They had been hammering over Temple's right guard with great success, until its second down and six yards to the goalline.

They had found the weakness gaining every time through it. Instead a badly thrown forward dead over center, into the bunched up defense, and its third and six.

Then its fourth and two yards to the score, and the minutes are ticking off fast, the end of the game approaching.

Eight points after touchdowns Boston College had run up in succession in previous games, not a miss. The ball is placed perfectly. Instead, another running play is tried, and Temple is ready for it. The ball is one yard short of what would have been a winning touchdown.

However, the gamble on the line play at this moment was a question of judgment. Perhaps if an Eagle placement had gone wide of its mark the grandstand quarterbacks would have been merciless, favoring the ball carrying signal.

Harvard Expected to Show Fancy Down-Field Laterals

Harvard, lacking the power to cope with major rivals, is expected to unleash a fancy, deceptive attack, featuring laterals, against Navy in Baltimore Saturday.

Working with a squad that is fast, light and intelligent, Coach Harlow has the perfect setup for an [illegible] offense.

Last year his double shift so bewildered Princeton that Harvard gained almost as much ground on Tiger off sides as it did by rushing. This year, something equally as tricky is anticipated.

In the holiday drill which was held in the morning so that the squad might attend the Boston College-Temple game, Harlow alternated Frank Foley and Bob Burnett at right halfback on Team A, George Downing and Win Jameson at right end on Team B.

Harlow will take 37 men to Baltimore for the game, including the injured back, Bob Stuart, and the injured center, Tom Russell.

Those making the trip are:

Ends—Daughters, Green, Jameson, Winter, Downing, Kennedy.

Tackles — Kevorkian, Healey, Booth, Barkin, Schmidt, Hallett.

Guards — Allen, Nee, Glueck, Klein, Downes.

Centers—Russell, Hedblom, Wilson, Coleman, Cheever.

Backs—Boston, Jerome, Staruski, Oakes, Harding, Roberts, MacDonald, Stuart, Foley, Burnett, Smith, Clethier, Struck, Pope, Cohen.

The Lantern Club of Boston, an organization composed of the representatives of national magazines covering New England territory is running a novel golf tournament at Woodland Friday.

Each member of the club is inviting one guest to play as his partner in a Scotch foursome with selected drives.

There will be prizes for a few of the best net scores which are computed by deducting one-half of the combined handicaps of each team from their gross medal score for 18 holes.

There will be a dinner and entertainment following the golf match at the Woodland Club.

This is the first time, it is believed, that any advertising organization in Boston has sponsored a tournament of this sort.

URGES LAZZERI FOR BEES' POST

[illegible]

Who will be the new manager of the Bees?

What do you think of Bill McKechnie going to the Reds?

[illegible] a prize of $5 for each letter published, and a prize [illegible]

[illegible]

As an individual fan and as a royal rooter of the Boston Bees, I was very much perturbed on the news of Bill McKechnie leaving Boston. During his eight years' regime as manager of the Braves and Bees he has given New England fandom the very best baseball that possibly could be produced under the circumstances.

"Many times he has been referred to as a miracle man and this term he most justly deserves. But the space between life and eternity is short and is sprinkled with many trials so I do not blame him because he changed his baseball scenery in order to better himself financially, which without a doubt was the reason for the change, and I feel it my honest duty to wish him every possible success in his new venture.

"In regard to a new manager, I would suggest none better than 'Push 'em Up' Tony Lazzeri of the Yanks. He no doubt would be pleased to come to Boston and would receive a royal welcome and the real support of the fans as a whole.

"Of course there is the question of whether Tony will play next year or not because of his batting power only, whereas he could quit now in his glory and not spoil the good deeds of his past by trying to play another year.

"If pressure was brought I certainly think he would accept. He knows the game from every angle, and is very well thought of throughout the baseball world. Furthermore, he could use that famous eye of his as a pinch hitter when needed.

"If Gabby Hartnett cannot be brought here, and I do not think he can, Tony is the real bet.

BIG GILLETTE FOOTBALL CONTEST PAYS $1,000 PRIZE MONEY WEEKLY

Gillette's big, nation-wide Football Contest offers you an easy chance to share $1000 in cash prizes every week! You don't have to be an expert. This contest is based on the important college football games every week—games about which you have already formed opinions. You have a chance to win any one of eight big prizes: $500 first prize, $250 second prize, $100 third prize, $50 fourth prize. And there are four extra prizes of $25 each! Get your whole family to try. It's easy. Just use the entry blank below, and follow the simple rules.

READ THESE SIMPLE RULES

1. Check the 7 teams you predict will win the games listed in blank below. Entries for Oct. 16th contest must be postmarked before midnight Oct. 15th.
2. Accompany entry blank with a letter of not more than 50 words giving your reasons for picking any one team over its opponent.
3. Print your name and address and name and address of your Gillette dealer where indicated on blank.
4. Attach to entry blank an empty Gillette or Probak Blade package (not individual blade wrapper), or a reasonable facsimile.
5. For best letters these awards will be made every week: 1st $500, 2nd $250, 3rd $100, 4th $50 and four of $25 each. Full and fair consideration by independent judges will be given every letter complying with the rules.
6. Judges' decisions are final and all letters entered become the property of the Gillette Safety Razor Company. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Anyone may compete except employees of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, their advertising agency and their families.
7. Act now! Fill out the blank below, attach your letter and empty blade package and mail to Gillette Safety Razor Company, P. O. Box 5, Boston, Mass.

New contest starts every week. Submit as many entries as you wish. See your Gillette dealer for extra blanks.

CHAMPIONS—EVERY YEAR!

For smooth, clean, comfortable shaves, Gillette Blades in your Gillette Razor take top honors the year 'round! This "team" works in perfect alinement—gives more value for your shaving dollar. It pays to insist on Gillette Blades—always!

Win With Wilson At Mayfair Tonight | Tribute to King Of Handicappers

By JACK CONWAY

THEY ARE TOSSING a dinner to Dave Wilson of the sports staff of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser at the Club Mayfair at 9 o'clock tonight. The occasion is the crowning of Dave as the 1937 handicap champion of New England.

MR. BOSTON

Wilson is also the handicap champion of the United States. He has led all of the leading handicappers in this country this year in the picking of winners.

There is not any handicapper who has ever come near to approaching Dave's record at calling the turn in major stake races. Whether Bold Venture, a 21 to 1 shot, or War Admiral, the favorite, won the famous Kentucky Derby or the classic Preakness in Maryland, Dave had him on top.

Seabiscuit, the winner, was naturally Wilson's choice in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap, the most important turf classic of the year in New England.

Tonight's dinner will also be a going away party for Wilson as he will leave for the racing season in Maryland and then go on to Florida when Rockingham Park closes.

Wilson, of course, will send his daily handicaps and race news from Southern tracks to the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

Wilson and Early Horse Training

DAVE WILSON was born in Baltimore, Maryland, and as a boy spent [illegible] through the numerous breeding farms in that state. He [illegible] and when he speaks of him [illegible] with a tone of [illegible]

[illegible]

"Who is Wilson?" race goers began to ask, as the horses named by Dave came down in front.

It is now more than three years since Dave came to New England and each season has seen him [illegible] the parade of handicappers.

This writer coined the phrase "Win with Wilson," and it has been a fitting one to use in referring to the king of handicappers.

There will be many notables from the world of sport at the Wilson dinner at the Club Mayfair tonight. [illegible]

It will be a unique party, this dinner to the handicapper. It is the first time in the history of New England that such a tribute has been paid to a race track handicapper.

It will be more than a tribute to a handicapper. It will also be an expression of personal admiration on the part of Dave Wilson's friends to as fine a character as ever watched a field of thoroughbreds come pounding down the home stretch in a great stake race.

We'll be seeing you at the Club Mayfair.

Rush of Entries for Hearst All-America

EACH MAIL is bringing new entries for the Hearst All-America amateur boxing tournament which will open with trial bouts at the Arena on November 1.

There have been numerous entries received in the novice as well as in the open classes. There will be bouts in each of the eight championship classes for the novices as well as for the more experienced boxers.

Boxers from each section of New England will compete in what should prove to be the most brilliant amateur boxing tournament ever held in this country.

There will be trial bouts for New England boxers at the Arena on November 1, 8, 15 and 22. The New England finals will be staged at the Arena on November 29.

The All-Eastern finals will be held at the Garden on December 6 and the grand national finals at the Garden on December 13. Boxers from every section of the United States will take part in the grand national finals.

Tufts Squad in Poor Condition

R. I. State Game Put Several on Sidelines

The Tufts gridmen get down to serious business this afternoon after a virtual three-day layoff.

Coach Harold Zimman is expected to be in uniform but his thigh injury is likely to keep him on the sidelines for several more days.

The Jumbo fans do not consider the Bates game scheduled for Saturday at the Tufts Oval a major threat but the Jumbo coaches know that their players have not yet recovered the beating received at the hands of Rhode Island State last week and several first string men may not be able to play up to their usual standard.

Donald Emery is indicated to play in Zimman's place for the remainder of the week, but a shift in the entire right side of the line is expected for Saturday's game.

Lazzeri Assured Of Yankee Berth

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS).—Tony Lazzeri, enroute to his California home today, may reconsider retirement as the second sacker of the New York Yankees as a result of his brilliant playing in the World Series in which he led regulars of both clubs at bat.

The Yankee management is understood to have told the veteran before his departure last night that there will be a place for him in the lineup next year if he wants to stay with the club. Lazzeri, however, is being mentioned as a possible manager of the Boston Bees or the Cleveland Indians next year.

Cornell Star on Shelf

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP).—George Peck, star right halfback, has been lost to the Cornell football team, possibly for the remainder of the season as the result of an injured back.

Seabiscuit Has Earned $194,285

$7500 Original Price Paid for Hard Tack Son

By the Associated Press

As a result of yesterday's victory in the Continental Handicap at Jamaica, which earned him $9250, Howard's Seabiscuit not only is the leading money winner of the 1937 season but [illegible] on the list of American winners.

The easy won triumph, Seabiscuit finished the mile and one-sixteenth five lengths ahead of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' [illegible] Hard Tack, which sold for $7500 [illegible] 1937 and $194,285 for his three year racing career.

"We had been losing money on this game for five years and felt we were unable to continue," said the president.

Dave Rules As Turf King

Tonight's the night. Leaders in sport life and in the world of entertainment will be on hand to celebrate the Victory Dinner which will be given Dave Wilson, handicap king, at the Club Mayfair. Ann Corio, at left, headlines the entertainers. In center, C. F. Adams, president of Suffolk Downs, is shown presenting King Wilson with a watch for having picked the most winners during the summer Suffolk meeting. At right is Jack Sharkey, one of the many boxing notables who will attend.

ABA Meet Here Sets Precedents

All Reserve Presidents Attend Together With Governor Eccles

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The annual convention of the American Bankers Association now being held in Boston is going down in the record books as a precedent breaker. Attendance, in both size and quality, is about the best ever while the speakers' list is notable for the absence of government leaders and also for adherence to strictly banking subjects.

For the first time in the association's history, it is believed, all 12 Reserve bank presidents were in attendance at the opening session. In addition, Governor Eccles came on from Washington. While no formal meeting of Reserve leaders has taken place their presence here gave them an excellent opportunity to discuss informally credit problems and related banking subjects. The various clinics and the headline speakers have hewed to professional subjects with few exceptions and these latter, it might be said, did not wander far astray since they clung to legislative matters of importance to the banking and the business world with which it is in such close contact.

* * *

The sad plight of stock traders is strikingly revealed by the latest figures on margin accounts supplied the SEC by 19 member houses of the New York Stock Exchange. They show that some 47.1 per cent of their accounts are in the so-called restricted zone, i.e. those in which margins have fallen below the minimums set by the Federal Reserve Board on initial purchases. Regulations do not allow withdrawals of cash or new commitments in such instances and they thus become static or frozen. The full import of the figure just released is best realized when compared with that of August 20, when only 27.5 per cent were frozen. And it might be added that the market at that time had already slipped.

* * *

At the same time the condition of customers' accounts for the restricted number of houses reporting is not considered representative of the all-member firms. A survey conducted privately during September indicates that the comparable figure for all is between 50 and 60 per cent. Contrast this with the 47.1 percentage of the 19 houses and it is not difficult to understand some of the blue singers one meets up with in a day's travel through the financial district.

* * *

It all depends on the individual viewpoint, but that fireside chat of last night is susceptible to some interpretations of a bullish nature. Not, we hasten to add, that there was anything cheering for business and industry already burdened with regulations and fearful of more. But this proposed crop control program points directly at stabilizing, if not a lifting, of commodity prices. And recent declines have added to the burden of shaky security marts. As for the wage and hour legislation it is obviously kin to the departed but unmourned NRA, and if memory serves us right the passage of that masterpiece was the signal for a concerted forward buying rush.

* * *

So it may well prove that events looked to with trepidation may mark a turning point in financial and market affairs, even though temporary. The longer term outlook will depend on the willingness of Congress and the administration to compromise with economic sanity in their impulsive desire to bring about reforms. It is again a question of "the goal is admirable but the methods likely to be used disturbing."

Heavy Stock Mart Jolts Wall Street

Motors Felt Liquidation Most

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—A heavy stock market, down 3 to 4 or more points, jolted Wall Street again today. Margin calls, which went out as the result of Monday's crack, made themselves felt around the end of the first hour, brokers said.

This thrust shares down from an early rally scored after strength in London. So furious was the trading pace in the forenoon, the ticker tape fell behind as much as eight minutes at one time. By early afternoon the market regained its poise and the tape caught up, but most stocks remained spineless.

Motors felt liquidation most, then steels, but the latter group developed irregular resistance.

A sharp drop in wheat at Chicago also served as a shock to confidence, financial circles said.

Under pressure much of the time were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, U.S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Macy, Oliver Farm Equipment, American Telephone, Western Union, Kennecott, American Smelting, St. Joseph Lead, American Can, Westinghouse, Phillips Petroleum, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Pullman.

Sharp downturns were recorded by duPont, Allied Chemical and Case.

In favor were U. S. Steel, American Steel Foundries, National Steel, National Lead, New York Central, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio and Northern Pacific.

Cotton lost part of a rise of around $1 a bale. Wheat recovered some of its deep decline. Corn was narrow. Bonds were uneven. The pound sterling was sharply higher. The French franc improved somewhat.

CURRENT ITEMS

At the start of trading, Wall Street observers scanned the report of "Iron Age" for indications of steel trends.

The survey said evidence was at hand that the readjustment of steel output to current small demand practically has been completed.

The motor industry again was cited as a potential important source of new business, although, it was noted, orders placed a week ago by General Motors and Chrysler have not yet been followed by substantial buying from other makers.

Estimates in financial circles showed that freight carloadings for the week ended Oct. 2, appeared to have moved up to a new peak for the day.

Analysts said that although crop shipments this month are expected to swell considerably, gains in this group may be more than offset by shrinkage in the movement of industrial products.

The pound sterling opened ¼ of a cent up at $4.95¾. The French franc was .02¼ of a cent higher at 3.35¾ cents.

Indicate Steel Adjustment Completed

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—The indications are that adjustment of steel production to the current small volume of "hand-to-mouth" buying has been virtually completed, Iron Age said today in its weekly review of the steel industry.

Steel production for the industry as a whole was estimated at 63½ per cent for the week. A month ago, it was estimated at around 80 per cent of capacity.

"Some steel companies estimate that their current shipments are about 15 per cent in excess of incoming orders," the magazine said.

"Thus a moderate increase in new business would about strike a balance between present production rates and demand. Buying by the automobile companies is still disappointing."

In keeping with reduced mill production, scrap prices have declined to the lowest of the year. The Iron Age scrap composite price at $16.25 is 66 cents below last week's level and has gone back to the price of early December, 1936.

EXPORT BUYING UP

"Export buying has increased materially," the magazine said, "and a great many inquiries are still under negotiation, the stumbling block being a difference of views as to prices. European buyers have obtained some concessions. A reconciliation of price differences undoubtedly would result in considerably more business here, particularly in ingots and semi-finished steel.

"Steel companies have taken a firm stand against price concessions, which some buyers have been urging. Present high labor and other costs are cited as necessitating the maintenance of the present price schedule.

"An early reaffirmation of present prices for the first quarter, which some expect to be in line with recent precedent, might tend to convince buyers as to price stability.

"Ingot output in the nine months ended Sept. 30 totaled 42,498,769 gross tons. An average output of 68½ per cent of capacity would be required during this quarter to exceed the record-breaking production of 54,312,279 tons of open-hearth and bessemer ingots in 1929."

Sharp Gains in N. E. Building

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Building construction permits issued in 215 leading cities in September totaled $66,710,800, a decrease of 1 per cent from August, compared with a seasonally-expected decline of around 10 per cent, Dun & Bradstreet reported. The figure was 2.2 per cent under September a year ago.

Permits for the first nine months at $651,605,258 ran 16.5 per cent above the like 1936 period.

While building lagged in Atlantic and central regions, sharp gains were recorded in New England and the far West. Aggregate permits of leading cities by regions included:

Groups	Sept. 1937	Sept. 1936	Change per cent
New Eng	$5,331,296	$2,751,115	Inc. 12.1
Mid Atlan	22,273,113	22,793,878	Dec. 8.4

Boston permits for the first nine months showed a jump of 140.6 per cent over last year. Other sharp gains included Chicago, 76.5 per cent; Portland, Ore., 53.6 per cent; Philadelphia, 50.9; Detroit, 35.6, and Milwaukee, 34.6.

London Market Continues Up

Calmer Outlook on European Situation

LONDON, Oct. 13 (INS)—The London Stock Market continued its recovery today aided by a calmer outlook on the European situation and heavy buying at the attractive low price levels.

International issues firmed with a large turnover reported. U. S. Steel sold at 69 13-62 dollars, International Nickel at 46 11-32 dollars and Anaconda at 32 11-16 dollars to head the list.

The 3½s war loan lead British funds to all 'round recovery, being quoted at 101⅛ pounds. Industrials, domestic rails, motor shares, brewery issues, electrical equipments, shipping shares, chemical industries, oils, rubber shares and mining issues all followed the market trend to improved quotations, fractionally higher throughout all lists.

Special Dividend

AKRON, O., Oct. 13 (AP)—W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber Company, announced today that directors had declared a special dividend of 50 cents per share on common stock, payable November 10 to stockholders of record October 29.

Favorable Week for Harvesting of Crops

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (INS)—Except for interruption by rain of cotton picking in some sections of the cotton belt and the continued dryness of the soil in some midwest wheat sections, the week was generally favorable for the harvesting of crops and other fall activities, the U. S. weekly crop summary said today.

Wheat—Conditions continued dry in western portions of the belt with growth of early sown slow, and germination of late sown uneven. In the eastern portion the crop was in good condition. In most sections from northern Illinois and Missouri westward and northwestward, but excluding North Dakota and Montana, the soil continued generally too dry for further winter wheat sowing.

Corn—Husking and cribbing activities were held up in much of the belt because the grain was too damp and soft for storage. Some was being cribbed in Missouri while gathering made fair advance in the plains states. In Iowa husking made slow progress; the corn was still too moist and tough for storage. A hard freeze would be helpful.

Cotton—Ginning and picking progressed favorably in Texas with little prospect of top yields in northern district of state because of previous dryness. Harvest advanced in Oklahoma with some local delay because of rain. In the central and southeastern portions of the belt the weather favored outside operations. In the northeast, especially in North Carolina and Virginia, there was considerable delay by rain during about half of the week with some damage by wetness to open cotton.

Shouldn't Kill Goose Laying Golden Eggs

All Have Vital Stake In What Happens To Business

By B. C. FORBES

Every individual, every family has a vital stake in what happens to business.

Without the support made possible only from business profits, our whole structure of government would crash.

So would every life insurance company, every bank, every philanthropic and charitable institution, every university.

Our vast railway transportation system, essential to feeding the great majority of the people, would become hopelessly bankrupt and crippled.

The wage earning classes would suffer most of all.

• • •

Invariably when this column points out such facts and makes a plea to politicians to deliberate carefully before passing more and more legislation calculated to hamstring business, a deluge of letters rushes in, a large volume of them expressing—very forcefully—this sentiment:

"You can't deny that business was given free rein before the New Deal. What happened? The country was plunged into the worst depression in history. That showed there was dire need for a complete change in the rules governing business. Business, therefore, has no right to complain about its treatment by the New Deal. You should get aboard and applaud every step taken to make business behave."

• • •

Well, what was this country's record under the old order?

Nobody can deny that we became the foremost business nation on the face of the earth, that we acquired extraordinary national wealth, that we reached standards of living never approached by any other land, that we nurtured more savings bank depositors, more owners of investments, more families enjoying life insurance, more home owners, more youths reaping the advantages of college education, more families able to buy automobiles, more housewives possessing modern labor-saving household appliances than any other land.

Admittedly, this country did not escape the universal aftermath of the unconscionable waste of men, money and materials involved in the World War.

Let it be conceded that bankers, financiers, capitalists, industrialists, speculators and others acted imprudently under the impulse of boom times and that excesses needlessly aggravated the inevitable collapse.

Let it be conceded, too, that there was not only justification, but urgent need for enacting regulatory legislation.

But what should be our objective now?

Should not the administration realize that, after all, if such laws are passed that business and industry cannot prosper and the financial world function satisfactorily, all of us will inescapably suffer?

Because too much license was exercised in pre-New Deal days, is that justification for flying to extremes in clamping straitjackets on business and industry, thus making a full measure of employment impossible?

Should not the objective of every thoughtful citizen, official and private, be the restoration of prosperity rather than punishment so severe as to cripple business, cripple industry, cripple investments, cripple employment, cripple creation of enough wealth to keep our most-expensive-on-earth government going, and to enable the greatest possible number to earn a livelihood?

Business is still the goose we all must depend upon to lay golden eggs.

U. S. Trade With S. A. Up Sharply

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—United States trade with South America climbed sharply during August, the Commerce Department reported.

Exports to South America totaled $27,670,000 for the month, compared with $15,145,000 in August last year. Imports from South America stood at $32,577,000 and $22,319,000 in the respective months.

For the first eight months of this year sales to South America aggregated $194,590,000, compared with $129,263,000 in the similar period last year. Purchases from that continent aggregated $313,876,000 and $185,457,000, respectively.

Material Gains Scored in Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Wheat scored material gains in price here early today, responsive to Liverpool quotations which were much higher than due. Active export demand yesterday for wheat from United States counted as a stimulating factor.

Opening ⅛ to 2 cents up, December 97¼-98½, May 99-99⅝, Chicago wheat futures then held steady. Corn started ¼-1⅛ higher, December 57½-¾, May 58¾-59.

United Fruit Co. Reports Profit

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—United Fruit Co. reported estimated net profit today for the nine months ended September 30 of $10,177,000 after charges but before income taxes, equal to $3.50 a capital share.

This compared with an estimated net profit of $10,628,000, or $3.65 a share, in the like 1936 period.

'Proper Rates' Held Need of Rails

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13 (AP)—M. J. Gormley, executive assistant of the Association of American Railroads, asserted the nation's lines, suffering from a "malnutrition diet" handed out by regulating authorities, must be allowed to charge "proper rates" if they are to continue under private ownership.

"The situation is such at the present time," Gormley told the annual meeting of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America, "that the shippers could perform no better function than to impress upon the governmental authorities the necessity for the establishment of a sound, continuing transportation policy.

"This policy must include the payment of sufficient rates to place transportation on a basis where it will not be continually a problem before the country. The malnutrition diet handed out to the railroads in years past by regulating authorities has resulted in the peculiar situation existing today where the railroads are not permitted to acquire enough surplus during times of great prosperity to avoid the necessity of application for increases in rates in times of depression."

Gormley referred to a bill now pending in Congress to limit the length of freight trains to 70 cars as "evidence of a lack of transportation policy," asserting it would increase the railroads' "out-of-pocket" cost of operation by $125,000,000 each year on the basis of 1930 traffic.

Business Car Running Back Down Hill

Commodity Price Drop Curtailing Production, Reducing Employment

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

(Special to Boston Evening American)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—What is going on in our business world today may well be regarded as a sort of collapse of managed currency and social planning. This centers in the fall of commodity prices, which is causing curtailment of production and reduced employment.

Early this year, the currency managers and social planners said to themselves that it was time to put on the brakes. Then they found that the motor stalled. And now the car of business is running back down the hill.

I do not mean to say that the entire "recovery" since 1932 was the result of government schemes. But I do hold that the recovery was so shaped and man-handled by the planners that its growth and collapse can be understood only in connection with the New Deal policies.

Underlying it all from the beginning was the idea of price boosting, which finally brought such an upsurge that the brakes were clamped down.

• • •

On the demand side, the price lifting operations began with a great drive to depreciate the currency.

Abandonment of the gold standard, "devaluation," silver buying and open market operations were all tried. These were implemented by government spending, which built up excess bank reserves.

This suggests the vast amount of relief work and rearmament spending that has gone on throughout the world, as a result, the prices of metal and other building materials were raised.

Of course, speculation came to play its part on commodity exchanges. And "forward buying" was increasingly in evidence. Finally, plant expansion began and there was even the appearance of a considerable volume of new security issues.

On the supply side, too, price-lifting forces were at work. As time went by depression shortages developed, notably in the case of automobiles. Severe drouth helped boost grains, meat and hides. Despite relatively high wages, labor strikes became serious, raising costs and threatening tie-ups.

• • •

Commodity prices, accordingly soared in mid 1933. There was a moderate rise in 1934. Toward the end of 1936 they soared again.

But in each case, there was a relapse as markets ran into the uncertainties, fears and adverse policies of the government. The rises all had a large speculative element, and once checked, declines which fed upon themselves naturally followed. Today, for example, there is little buying, because prices are falling; yet prices are falling because there is little buying.

We should note well that all this is despite the easy money policy, the devaluations, the high wage and farm bonus policies, and the social planning, which are the New Deal.

In fact, the debacle of the last one of the several New Deal boomlets came as a result of these stimulants and perversions.

Uncertainty as to money and government interference is the basis. Then fear arises concerning labor costs and taxes. Then the government's fear for its own credit leads it to taper off its spending and building activity subsides. At the same time, Washington clamps down on speculation.

• • •

Of course, instead of drouth, we have now very large yields. There is no longer a shortage of automobiles. Nor are strikes threatening to tie up production.

So what?

Well, the same administration is in control. The same depreciated dollars are in circulation, with plenty more where they came from. The same wars and rumors of war call for rearmament. There are depression shortages other than automobiles. So the pump will be primed again, and with somewhat sounder labor and financial policies, another New Deal boomlet will come. It is only a question of time.

Dividends Up As Stocks Dip

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Dividends paid by Pacific Coast corporations have been going up while prices of their stocks have been going down the last 10 weeks.

The opposite trends of dividends and prices have brought spectacular increases in the returns on all paying shares.

The 55 stocks the exchange has called "representative" of its list paid 42 per cent more dividends the first three quarters this year than last. The average market price of these stocks was 27 per cent lower at the end of the September quarter than last year.

Bankers Granted Extra Year by SEC

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Securities Commission gave bankers today an extra year before requiring them to quit the boards of directors of registered utility holding companies and subsidiaries. The new deadline is January 1, 1939.

Officials indicated the action was in line with the commission's policy of "going slow" in applying the 1935 Utility Holding Company Act prior to a determination of its constitutionality by the Supreme Court.

Bermuda Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Crowley, who were married in St. Joseph's Church, East Boston, yesterday, will honeymoon in Bermuda. The bride is the former Sarah Leary.

British Brokers Blame Wall St.

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—British brokers today accused Wall Street operators of causing an international break in security prices.

They advanced manifold reasons why London was not guilty of starting the steep price slide but financial men confessed they were unable to give a valid and conclusive explanation of why the slump started and why it continues.

Brokers asserted nearly every recent break stemmed from Wall Street and the London Security Market was forced to follow. On several occasions, they added, the London market bid up prices before Wall Street opened and then got its fingers burned when Wall Street started business at lower levels.

Tuesday's market was cited as an example of what London could do when Wall Street was closed for a holiday. The London exchange took courage from continental buying and rebounded strongly late yesterday afternoon, wiping out a sharp morning break.

German Rotary Clubs Disband

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (INS)—The disbanding of rotary clubs in Germany as the result of a decree of the national socialist party was revealed at headquarters of rotary international here today.

A prepared statement said:

"The decree of the national socialist party, in Germany that members of that party who are also members of rotary clubs in Germany must withdraw from their clubs by Dec. 31, 1937, has brought the rotary clubs in Germany to a decision to resign from rotary international and to disband."

6 Sailors Killed, 9 Hurt in Oil Fire

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 13 (AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Company officials said today six Venezuelan sailors were killed and nine were injured when an oil-line broke on the tanker Paraguana at Baytown, spraying the men with blazing oil.

50,000 See Big Parade

Weather Ideal for Holiday Event

Under gloriously clear skies Boston celebrated Columbus Day with more than 50,000 in line to view a typically-colorful parade from the Back Bay to North End Park.

Legion drum corps, bands and marching post members, civic leaders, Boy Scouts, fraternal and religious orders combined to commemorate the 445th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of the New World.

Sailors from the Charlestown Navy Yard, soldiers and national guardsmen in military mufti added color to the parade.

Flags were dipped as they passed the State House, a silent tribute to little Sally Hurley, daughter of the governor, who died suddenly.

Mayor Mansfield and his staff reviewed the parade as it swept down School street, into Washington street, and on to North End Park.

Want to Offer Million to All

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13 (AP)—"Step right up, ladies and gents! Grab hold of this million dollars! Feel it, hold it in your hands for only one dime—the tenth part of a dollar!"

That's the kind of concession a group of San Franciscans wants to operate at the 1938 Golden Gate International Exposition. It proposes cashing in on the fact few persons have seen $1,000,000 and the hope that enough would pay a dime to boast they had.

Dead Man's Name On Town Ballot

WESTFIELD, Oct. 13—An unusual angle in today's primary is the inclusion of the name of a dead man as a candidate.

John P. Hafey, 27 Dubois street, a runner-up in the ward 2 councilman race two years ago, died several weeks ago. There are three other candidates in this ward.

Massachusetts HOME OWNER Week - October 9 to 16, 1937

Glazer Started Career Early

Frank Glazer, brilliant young pianist, who makes his second Town Hall appearance in New York Sunday evening, October 31, began his career in kindergarten days.

From kindergarten he would hurry home to pick out tunes on the family piano, a $25 model, bought on the family earnings.

His was a musical family. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Glazer of Milwaukee had seven sons, each a musician. When Frank was eight years old he was already playing local engagements.

Glazer studied under the late Jacob Moerschel who recognized the boy's remarkable talents.

Passenger Hurt, Driver Arrested

John Noblett, 31, Willard street, New Bedford, was badly injured when a car in which he was a passenger, skidded and turned over on the Providence road in Dedham early today.

Taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, it was discovered a piece of his spine had been knocked out. Harold Sykes, 31, Benefit street, Providence, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Police said he was operator of the car.

Hero Declines Rescue Honor

Saves Four, Remains Unidentified

An unidentified hero today had quietly slipped out of the lives of four persons whom he rescued from drowning in Lower Mystic Lake, Medford.

Their outboard-motor driven rowboat capsized when Robert Wyne, 19, of Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, tried to restart the motor after it stalled in mid-lake.

With Wyne were Cornelius Ludwig, of Willow place; Miss Edith Wayne, 20, of Massachusetts avenue, and Miss Jeanette Wayne, 22, of Moulton street.

Fatal Hit-Run Driver Hunted

Police today made a determined effort to track down the hit-run driver believed responsible for the death of Michael Houghton, 30, of Harvard street, Cambridge, a porter at Boston City Club.

Houghton was killed instantly at the entrance to the underpass on Memorial Drive in front of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mystery Earth Shocks Studied

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 13—Reports of six sharp mystery earth shocks at Kennebunkport were under observation at the Harvard branch seismograph station here today.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Mrs. Elizabeth Carlin, 148 Morrison Ave., Somerville, Mass., says:—"When I first went to Dr. Walsh my blood pressure was 204 and now it is down to 138. I also had bladder trouble. I was quite miserable. I had been treated by Doctors and Hospitals but they did not help me. I read of Dr. Walsh and what he was accomplishing for those who were afflicted with chronic disease and I had Dr. Walsh treat me. The bladder trouble is a thing of the past and I am feeling fine. I think that those who suffer as I did should profit by my experience and have Dr. Walsh cure them."

The G-Men Win Again

AL BRADY, vicious bandit-killer and the nation's most recent Public Enemy No. 1, chose a Dillinger life and died a Dillinger death.

In Bangor, Me., the sure fire of the G-Men's guns toppled him from his crime-studded throne as neatly as a similar blast toppled his notorious predecessor who walked from a theater with "the woman in red."

Caught in the hail of bullets was C. Lee Shaffer, Jr., a henchman. With Brady he lived by the trigger. With Brady he died by the trigger.

Caught also was James Dalhover, another henchman. He survives, though few will envy him his luck.

Thus ends the inglorious story of three Indiana young men whose gang boasted it would "out-Dillinger" Dillinger, killed, robbed and went a long way toward making good.

THE quick extinction of these criminals of first rank in probably the last city in the United States where one would expect to find them adds new luster to the amazing achievements of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The extinction is an emphatic reminder that the G-Men are beating the underworld AT ITS OWN GAME.

G-Men are not to be stopped by bullets. Though the murderous tendencies of Brady were well known, they willingly risked their own lives to give him the end he deserved.

They succeeded, as the Bangor dispatches prove, and, succeeding, they once again served grim notice on all gangsters that when the Federal agents undertake a job, THEY COMPLETE IT.

IN the capture of Brady and his aides one man was outstanding. He is Everett Hurd, Bangor sporting goods store clerk. Suspicious of the gangsters when they tried to purchase ammunition from him a fortnight ago, he notified Police Chief Thomas Crowley.

Chief Crowley, in turn, notified Washington and pictures were rushed to Bangor. Identification of the wanted men followed.

Because Hurd was suspicious and had the courage to communicate his feelings to the proper authorities, the attack on the gangsters was made possible. He was the unofficial hero.

Hurd's conduct merits praise. What others could have done but did not do he did. Certainly, if all people were as wide awake as he, killers of the Brady type would not roam long unmolested about the country.

FEW TEARS can or will be shed for Brady and his henchman. They received only their own lethal medicine.

The Brady gang, like the Dillinger gang, is but a new, brief chapter in that vast and ever-growing volume titled: "CRIME DOES NOT PAY."

A Faithful Public Servant

THE death of former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills follows closely upon that of his distinguished predecessor, Andrew W. Mellon.

The careers of these two able statesmen thus follow in death a pattern close to that pursued in life.

Mr. Mills succeeded Mr. Mellon in the office both filled with distinction. Under Mr. Mellon such financial direction had been given the affairs of the nation that the burdens of government rested with increasing ease upon the people.

The Cabinet post in which Ogden Mills served so well crowned a long career of public service. In a very real sense his career refutes the theory that wealth stands between a man and a life of service to his country.

He did not relish the security of a sheltered life which his wealth offered him, any more than he would permit the handicap of faulty eyesight to keep him out of the World War. He was in the Argonne with the Sixth Division of Marines when the war ended.

After the war, he had a brilliant record in Congress, advancing to an under-secretaryship in the Treasury Department under President Coolidge.

Whatever ambitions such men as Mr. Mills take into public life, we ought to remember the odds against them when they accept a role of public service.

Rich men, if they are men of exceptional training and ability, as was Mr. Mills, have much to give their country. Of course wealth alone is not a qualification for public service. But when it is the product of experience and administrative capacity in private life, it is the mark of a man whose talents can be used with profit in the service of the people.

We do not make it easy for rich men, even the most worthy of them, to give the nation the benefit of their talents.

Ogden L. Mills gave most faithful and most efficient service to the American public, and his name should be honored and remembered by the people he served.

Smile When You Say "No"

JESSE F. WOOD, Richmond, Va., banker, addressing a session of the American Bankers' Association, now convening here, talked common sense.

"Why," inquired Mr. Wood, "isn't it possible to say 'no' cordially and politely so that it won't hurt, and not try to create the impression that a customer is small and insignificant?

"One grouchy man can undo all the good that his fellows can possibly accomplish.

"For a man, like a tack, can only go as far as his head allows."

That is good advice, not only for bankers but for ALL people. Most of us need it—badly.

There is usually no excuse for growling or barking "no." A soft answer will still "turneth away wrath."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—New York, after a year or so of dowdiness, is showing an inclination to go completely white tie and tails this fall and winter. Evening clothes or the full dress suit for men were becoming about as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth.

O. O. McIntyre

The only dressers of this sort seemed to be the monocled boys from the other side or Clifton Webb who is always plushed up to the quick. Hostesses were complaining of certain dinner guests arriving now and then not even in dinner jackets, but in ordinary business suits.

The great objection to full evening dress has always been that it chiefly becomes only those of slender girth. No adornment so accentuates excess flesh. Indeed, one tailor of distinction said privately he knew only a half dozen public figures suited for such habiliments.

He included Bainbridge Colby, Owen Young, Jack Buchanan and Adolphe Menjou. The full dress suit was the sartorial abomination of Mark Twain. He got so he would go nowhere it was required. Finally he compromised on white flannels and thereby touched off a vogue.

To my notion the sprightliest fellow I ever saw in full dress was the Hollywood film actor, Francis Lederer, in his role in "The Wonder Bar" in Berlin five or six years ago. Later I saw him at Watterson Rothacker's ranch in California and he might have been a Ted Healey, so slipshod was he.

Another shark at wearing evening clothes gracefully before he began to plump up was the dancing man, Pepy de Albrew.

Valentino, as handsome a figure as he was, did not wear evening clothes well and hated such attire, he once told me. He was at his Brummellish best in a business suit with a dark colored shirt with collar to match and those deep purple ties which he affected.

Just as Aubrey Eads makes an art of the flounce to his breast pocket handkerchief, so did Valentino give a perk to the loop in his four-in-hand that was the envy of the better dressed.

Many tried the same effect, but only Valentino achieved that finical something.

There is a popular belief that all literary men, from poets to writers of best sellers, are sartorially slipshod. Yet the records disprove from Shakespeare and Victor Hugo through the ages. London still talks of the nattiness of Michael Arlen when he burst on the literary scene.

Isaac Marcosson is a fashion plate and one of the few Americans who almost invariably dresses for dinner nightly. Somerset Maugham's tweedy getups have long been the talk of the French Riviera.

Charles G. Norris, on occasions is a bang-up dude and few men past 60 have the sleekness of E. Phillips Oppenheim.

The list also includes Louis Bromfield, Joe Bryan, 3d, Corey Ford, Lucius Beebe and Joseph Hergesheimer.

There are experts who say the best dressed man on stage, screen or along the public highways is Tullio Carminati. He is also so regarded by the style experts of London and Rome.

There seems some merit to the charge of careless dressing among the poets. A possible exception is Ogden Nash, genial descendant of the upper crust, whose ancestors founded Nashville, Tenn. Berton Braley clings to a venerable slouch hat. Witter Bynner doesn't give a fig for style. Arthur Guiterman is no Adolphe Menjou. And so it goes down the list. Most poets are what might be called comfortable dressers.

Duding usually goes in spurts. Men who reach ripe years generally have three periods of intensive sprucing up fever. The first is between the ages of 18 and 24 and indulges all the exaggerations of the time. Then a lapse. It is revived again around what some are disposed to call the Dangerous Age—the early 40's.

And when one reaches 60 there seems to be the final sartorial fling. The victims are those boys who appear in the night clubs and in a short while are wearing one of those fools paper caps and featuring a giggling cutie on each knee.

So far as I know, Chauncey Depew was the only stylish dresser with out a let-down. He continued his sartorial elegance to his 90th birthday.

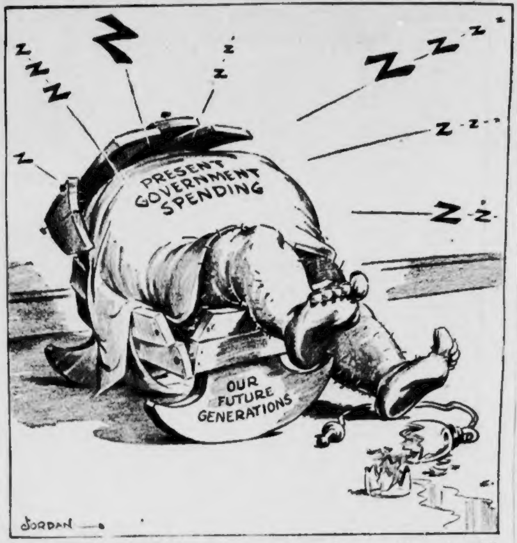
Isn't It So?

In these sophisticated days, alas, a man's faith in women and in heaven seems to disappear with his baby teeth and to reappear again with his false teeth.

Marriage is like the motor-car. Somebody is always putting new, up-to-date improvements on it—but nobody has yet discovered anything that will make it foolproof.

The Cradle Robber

By John F. Jordan



It is a fact that nobody knows how much excessive government costs in this country.

We may know approximately what the Federal Government spends.

We may know approximately what all the State Governments spend.

But who can add up the additional spending of some 170,000 other tax units of government?

A lot of this spending is DEBTS, mortgages on the future.

Truly, public squandering beds itself in the cradle of unborn generations.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Recently this department ran a contest for Young Americans not more than 30. They were asked to tell what THEY would do if they were dictators. What laws would they pass concerning MARRIAGE, EDUCATION, WORKING WOMEN, CHARITY, GENERAL GOVERNMENT.

Elsie Robinson

More than 20,000 answers were received—answers which revealed such amazing attitudes on the part of youth that they deserve consideration by every serious citizen.

PREPARATION URGED

For example, as regards marriage—do you still endorse the blind ignorance which "Nice People" thought essential in lovers in Grandpa's day? Then listen to this:

WITHOUT A SINGLE EXCEPTION EVERY ONE OF THESE 20,000 YOUNG PEOPLE DEMANDED PRACTICAL PREPARATION FOR MARRIAGE . . . PREMARITAL INSTRUCTION IN ALL VITAL, PHYSICAL FACTS . . . PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR THE YOUNG WOMAN AS WELL AS THE YOUNG MAN, AND A DOCTOR'S CERTIFICATE OF FITNESS BEFORE A LICENSE COULD BE GRANTED!

The young people making these demands ranged from agnostics to the most orthodox church goers. Yet in every case the demand was the same. Some specified that the physical instruction and examinations be given under the auspices of the church. Others said the state or school should assume this service.

BUT NONE FELT THAT MARRIAGE WAS "SACRED" OR FIT FOR MAN'S CONSENT OR GOD'S BLESSING—UNLESS THE APPLICANTS HAD CONFORMED TO THESE BASIC REQUIREMENTS.

Also, here is a remarkable fact. Without exception, these young people felt that the average parent is unprepared to give adequate physical instruction concerning marriage. A few had professional parents whom they considered fit—but even these thought such instruction should be given by authorized experts.

Another surprise! Suggestions had been made that Youth be given Federal Aid for a year after graduating from high school or college in order to enable it to "find its place in life—determine what work it would or could follow." Was this suggestion welcome?

IT WAS NOT!

A PAINSTAKING CHECK SHOWED THAT 98 PER CENT OF THE YOUNG PEOPLE WERE VEHEMENTLY OPPOSED TO ANY SUCH PLAN!

They readily conceded that Youth was in a bad industrial spot . . . that it should be given wider and more intelligent help in finding work. But it furiously resented the idea that it needed Uncle Sam's aid in "finding itself."

"SHOULD WOMEN WORK AFTER MARRIAGE?"

Another trick question. Here was a generation born since women entered industry—reared in a world where feminine jobs are an accepted fact. Out of the 20,000 writers, more than half were women workers, married or unmarried.

OLD HOME FAVORED

Surely they would vote for the married woman worker.

BUT THEY DIDN'T!

Only a scattered few clamored for female jobs.

NINETY PER CENT WERE SOLIDLY AGAINST THEM, "EXCEPT IN CASES OF GREAT DOMESTIC NEED, OR WHERE THE HUSBAND IS NOT WORKING, OR WHERE THE WIFE HAS SOME GREAT OUTSTANDING TALENT."

Save for these exceptions, Young America voted enthusiastically for THE OLD-FASHIONED HOME, WITH MOM AT THE HEAD OF IT!

Have you thought that Young America was a brainless brat—speed crazy and extravagant—incapable of serious thought?

Good time, maybe, to revise that opinion—yes?

Marry -GO- Round

By Helen Rowland

The American man is a hardy perennial. Nothing can kill him before his time—not even the things he does to himself. Like the good old honeysuckle vine, he comes up blooming every year.

He loads his insides with beans, pie and pickles in New England, and with hot-breads and fried foods in the South. In New York and elsewhere he lets the foreign chefs pour villainous hot melted butter over everything he orders except his coffee and ice-cream; and he blithely consumes half a dozen rich canapes before starting in on the lobster and steak.

But what ho! Then he takes a soda-mint and awakes in the morning all ready for his fried ham and hot waffles.

DARLINGS OF THE GODS

During all the years of the Noble Experiment, he drank everything poisonous from denatured alcohol to needled-champagne, white mule, swamp whisky and shellac. Yet his beautiful, cast-iron stomach still continued to act—like a stomach.

He rushes around like a maniac in a high-powered car, cuts out of line, slips past red lights; and unless he gets into a flirtation with a truck or a railway train, he lives to tell the judge "it wasn't so."

He keeps on rushing into marriage as though it were a revolving door, and sliding out of it again—as easily as a snake sheds its skin. Yet nothing ever quenches his optimism and enthusiasm until he finds himself in an alimony jail.

In short, in spite of bullets, racketeers, kidnapers, rich food, bad drinks, fast cars, jay-walking, patent medicines, gold-diggers and no judgment about love, he manages to survive, to thrive and to enjoy life!

No wonder, now and then, wives shoot their husbands. Nothing else seems to kill these darlings of the gods!

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Denver police say a Colorado convict has confessed that within six hours after his parole from the penitentiary he had stolen two automobiles and that he then got drunk on the $5 which the state gave him before turning him out of prison.

Whoever guessed that he would go straight and show his appreciation of the clemency which gave him another chance to live a decent, useful, honest life certainly made a bad guess.

But that is characteristic of the sloppy way in which parole systems are administered in many states.

The easier it is for criminals to get out on parole, the more inclined they are to think they can beat the law. That is one of the major causes of crime. Director Hoover of the G-men hit the nail squarely on the head when he said in a recent speech:

"There is only one undying motto of criminality, and that is the belief that the man committing a crime can get away with it.

"There is no medicine bottle in the world big enough to hold the nostrums of quacks who believe they can make criminals stop committing crimes by merely asking them to be good.

"There is no laboratory large enough to act as a central repository for all of the hasish dreams of moo-cow sentimentalists who believe most criminals are nice boys who are misunderstood and who should be given probation or early parole instead of substantial prison sentences.

"Of the more than 13,000 vicious desperadoes listed in the single fingerprint file of the F. B. I., 30 per cent of them have been freed on parole from one to eight and nine and ten times."

Parole abuses constitute the most scandalous phase of law enforcement in this country.

It must be embarrassing to the prosecution in the Wisconsin oil conspiracy trial to have oil companies plead the government "wanted us to do what we did."

Their counsel contends that "what was done by the defendants was for the purpose of accomplishing the objectives and purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act and was undertaken at the request of and pursuant to the authorization of Secretary of Interior Ickes, the the administrator of the Petroleum code." It was a foregone conclusion this would be the defense of the companies.

It is a pretty difficult task for any administration to try to "carry water on both shoulders" by sponsoring price fixing and at the same time trying to enforce anti-trust laws prohibiting price fixing.

One thing certain, the consumer gets skinned under any kind of price fixing, whether it is done by private interests in violation of anti-trust laws or under government supervision through a NRA setup.

The Sphinx Talks

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

After lo, these many thousand years, we are about to learn what the Sphinx is thinking about. For it seems that they have wired the great stone face in the desert sands — wired it for sound—and we may live to hear in stunned horror the great enigma declare a passionate preference for Hoozis' toothpaste.

Edwin C. Hill

For word comes from Egypt, via Paris, that the Egyptian government will sell space for electric advertising signs on the Pyramids.

Those who revere the past won't like it. Possibly the Pharaohs are spinning in their tombs. What an interview the Sphinx could really give to the reporters, or broadcast on the air. Let me imagine the tone and trend of it.

"Perhaps I am a little late in speaking now, but I have always thought that some day I'd tell the kings and politicians those Pyramids were a lot of foolishness.

"I get to thinking things over out here alone in the desert and, as I figure it, the work that went into the Pyramids would have reclaimed the Nile, saved most of Egypt from becoming a desert, and impounded enough water to yield about 8,000,000 horsepower of hydro-electric energy.

WASTED EFFORT

"They built them with about 200,000 slaves. Eight million horsepower from the Nile would have given them 24,000,000 slaves, working night and day for about 3000 years, without a cent of expense for food or shelter—one horsepower being the equal of eight manpower.

"It serves the Pharaohs right to have the things plastered over with electric signs.

"The first big sign ought to be the text from the story of Belshazzar's feast, 'Mene, mene tekel upharsin,' blazing out in box car letters clear across the desert.

"Any nation stupid and cruel enough to keep hundreds of thousands of slaves under the lash for decades just so they could tell which way is north sooner or later will be weighed in the balance and found wanting.

"We old-timers don't think so much of our seven wonders of the world as you do. You didn't see the slaves sweating and groaning when we were building them, and did you ever stop to think that not one of them was ever worth a dime to anybody, so far as any useful service was concerned?

"They were just monuments to pompous old kings, monuments to vanity and folly. One little powerhouse, running a loom to make just one pair of cotton pants for a naked fellahin, would have rendered a greater human service than the pyramids ever did.

"One of those singing statues of Memnon is quite a gossipy chap and gets all the news out of the air. He has been telling me lately all about those San Francisco bridges and about Boulder Dams and that two-mile bridge in Scotland and about the seven or maybe 700 wonders of the New World.

WHY HAVE WARS?

"He tells me they are all useful and that none of them was built with slave labor. He tells me, too, that your people have machines and forces which could toss up those Pyramids almost over night, if a whole nation put its mind to it, if there was any sense in it, which, of course, there wouldn't be.

"But there's one thing about your age I can't figure out. The Memnon boys and I were talking about it just the other night when Aldebaran was in the ascendant.

"They tell me that you build massive, beautiful and useful things everywhere in your world and then work just as hard, using millions of men and all kinds of new magic, to destroy them.

"As I get it, you have machines which have freed your slaves, but you have to use so many of your freemen to wreck what you have built and kill other freemen that you have a hard time making a living, and that you are getting scared for fear you'll be slaves again.

"I hear, too, that a lot of your best brains are being used on killing machines, rather than on power and irrigation and work machines.

"It doesn't sound reasonable, but old Al Memnon generally gets things pretty straight for a crooner, and I have thought ever since that cocky little Napoleon was around here with his big talk a while back that maybe you moderns aren't so smart after all.

THE WISE PHARAOHS

"Suppose that instead of building the Pyramids, the Pharaohs had just used half of their labor to build them half-way up and then had used the other half to kill the builders and destroy what they had built.

"That would have been just about your ticket, wouldn't it? I don't know. I can't get around much with my arthritis the way it is.

"But, thinking it over, maybe the Pharaohs weren't so dumb after all. They didn't blow up the Pyramids after they built them. That's something.

"I've had a lot of sponsors after me since word got around that I was going to talk. I had figured on doing some sort of interpretative things—the long view, or something like that—but I don't know.

"I guess maybe I'd better just take on that toothpaste account. I can't seem to make much out of either your age or mine."

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

No sooner had President Roosevelt intimated that the United States might desert its isolation in international affairs than the nations of Europe began to crowd around us like flies before an open jam-pot.

Obsequious flattery is suddenly poured on Uncle Sam from Moscow to London. We are suddenly kissed on both cheeks by France. Given the order of St. George by England, saluted as "comrades" by Russia and even red-appled by Germany.

Let's take Father Time by the hand and walk him back some years. From the time of the American Revolution to the Spanish-American War we were not only "isolated" by all Europe but were never anything in their eyes but "vulgarians," "barbarians" and, in fact, only a step above the primates.

But as soon as we became a first-class power in 1898, with our pockets stuffed with cash and the new self-consciousness of our tremendous resources, Europe began to take a deep interest in us. It sniffed the fleshpots of the West.

Then Europe cunningly maneuvered us out of our isolation in 1917, took us into a colossal murder party across the seas and frisked "the vulgarians" for billions of dollars, most of which it has no intention of ever paying.

Once again the war-buzzards of Europe are circling around us with their "Good Old Sam!" "Dear Old America!" and all the other hypocritical verbal bait.

Lower your asbestos curtain and put up your fire-doors, Uncle Sam—for here comes the PROFESSIONAL FIREBUGS again!

The news that the entire tribe of Seminole Indians in Oklahoma, numbering about 3100, are about to remove to Mexico, where they have been granted a large tract of land, recalls the fact that Seminoles means "the seceders."

In withdrawing from the United States the tribe would be keeping step with the fatality of their name.

The Seminoles seceded from the Creeks in the 18th century. They were originally from Florida. Their Napoleon, the famous Chief Osceola, kept Uncle Sam on the jump for many years.

Osceola was a Georgian. His father was an Englishman named Powell and his mother a Creek Indian. When the United States commissioners in 1833 attempted to remove the Seminoles from Florida to Kansas, Osceola told the U. S. A. that the Seminoles were going to stay in the "warm lands." The Seminole war started. It lasted for some years. In 1837, Osceola was captured and died at Fort Moultrie, S. C.

He was the most romantic of all our Redskin heroes, and his rebellious shade will no doubt march at the head of his tribe into Mexico.

One of the frightening characteristics of the Asiatic is his absence of a sense of humor. Also, he doesn't understand the mental "escape" of frivolity and foolishness.

In Tokio the Geisha girls have been ordered to eliminate all frivolity, to abandon gayety and dress in sombre garb.

If laughter and gayety are of great use socially it certainly should be during a war. No people on earth can sustain a hundred per cent hard-boiled face for any length of time, especially during a national crisis.

Laughter and high-jinks behind the lines help to win wars.

"Give me the control of the oceans and I'll own the earth," said Napoleon. Bonaparte, however, never even got control of the English Channel.

But there is a truth hidden in Napoleon's statement. Today, it is really the oceans that the nations of the world eye jealously.

A navy second to none should be the slogan of America. The Pacific and the Atlantic oceans should be our natural fortresses.
